Auditorium Suggested for Victoria

This is fundamentally the type of civic auditorium recommended for Victoria by Benjamin C. Moore, visiting consultant from Spokane. Picture shows interior of the year-old Spokane Coliseum with 5,000 permanent seats around the sides and 3,000 portable padded seats, built in units of four, running down the centre. Smaller rooms for conventions are built under the permanent seats and equipment has been installed for year-round functions, including hockey, skating, opera, plays, symphony concerts, teen-age dance nights and religious, political and civic meetings. Canada 'Informed' On Royal Romance

Queen's Tour Royal Tip On Marriage?

LONDON (CP) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are going to Nigeria on a royal tour of West Africa early next year, Buckingham Palace announced tonight.

The Associated Press reported "the suddenness of the announcement raised speculation the Queen may be making arrangements to be out of the country in the event her sister, Princess Margaret, goes ahead with her marriage to Peter Townsend."

The royal couple probably will fly both ways, the announcement said.

Nigeria, which has the largest population of any of Britain's dependent territories, has never been visited by a reigning sovereign. The Prince of Wales went there in 1925.

Text of the palace announcement: "The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will visit Nigeria next year, arriving there during the last few days of January and returning towards the middle of February.

"It is the Queen's hope that it may be possible for her to visit Her Majesty's other territories in West Africa in due course."

VISITS PRINCESS

Group Capt. Peter Townsend called on Princess Margaret at Clarence House today, two hours after she returned from a state drive for the president of Portugal.

Townsend arrived at 2.30 p.m.—the earliest call the handsome air attache has made to Clarence House since his return to London from Belgium on Oct. 12. All his previous four visits were in the late afternoon or evening.

EDEN DODGES ANSWER AS COMMONS OPENS

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden avoided a formal reply to a parliamentary question designed to smoke out the status of the rumored romance between Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

Eden briskly answered a series of questions leading right up to loaded question No. 61 put by Laborite MP Marcus Lipton. It asked if the government intended to try to repeal or amend the Royal Marriage Act of 1772.

Eden got to No. 59 and then sat down without going to No. 61.

Question time already had run past its alloted hour, so Eden was perfectly within his rights in dodging an answer to Lipton's query.

No Action By Cabinet In Sight

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—The Canadian government received an "informative" communication from Britain over the weekend concerning the romance of Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend, it was learned from informed sources today.

Members of the Canadian government declined to comment. It was suggested here that the communication would not be taken up by the Canadian cabinet until there was something "positive" to discuss.

The British communication was described as of "an informative nature." However, an Associated Press report from London said the British government had informally sounded out the Commonwealth countries on their reaction to the Royal romance.

Whether or not it was consulted the Canadian government has not expressed any opinion in reply. The position of the Canadian government presumably will be that no consideration of the matter is required until the engagement of the couple is an announced fact.

Renunciation by Princess Margaret of her right of succession to the British throne would require the assent of the Canadian parliament. Justice officials have examined the Statute of Westminster (1931) and abdication of King Edward VIII in 1936. It is concluded that parliamentary action in Canada would be required, as well as in the other Commonwealth countries.

Wallis Won't Comment

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor arrived from Europe today on the liner United States and declined comment on England's current royal romance.

SEASON'S FIRST STORM

Victoria Tug Rescues Seven

First heavy gales of winter overnight brought trouble to a tug in Island waters, and sent other craft scuttling to shelter following urgent gale warnings.

Following the storm, a circulation of cool, moist air has moved in, the weather office said. The forecast calls for heavy cloud and showers today, partial breaking through of the cloud Wednesday, with little likelihood of rain.

The small, 30-foot Vancouver tug Elizabeth A, with owner Roy Campbell aboard, was caught by suddenly rising wind and sea near the Ballenas Island group, northeast of Nanaimo in Strait of Georgia, about 6 p.m., Monday.

The tug began to ship water and was in danger of foundering. Her owner sent out a distress call on the tugboat radiotelephone, which was heard by Capt. Hec Fisher aboard Island Tug and Barge's veteran towboat Sea King I, not far from the Elizabeth A.

He reached the stricken 30-footer in slightly more than an hour, and found the owner and the six crew members bailing furiously to keep the craft afloat. Boom chains and other heavy gear had been thrown overside to lighten ship.

Sea King I got a line aboard and took Elizabeth A in tow. She was towed to Northwest Bay and anchored.

All other craft operating in Island waters were safely in snug harbors before the predicted gale-force winds struck. Heaviest winds were recorded north of the Island, in Queen Charlotte Sound, where they reached a velocity of 61 miles per hour.

The south-easterly storm brought reports to the Victoria weather office from various points of winds from 35 to 55 miles per hour.

Main force struck near the northern tip of the Island and in Strait of Georgia. Victoria's share was comparatively light, the tail-end of the storm passing over this area between 3 a.m. and dawn. Gusts to 55 miles per hour were recorded at 5.15 a.m.

HEAVY RAIN

The wind was accompanied by heavy rain. Along the Island and lower mainland coasts, two inches of rain fell in 24 hours.

The rain and wind caused

Three others were killed in storm—caused auto accidents.

The freak storm, driven by 60-mile-an-hour winds, with gusts reported up to 80 miles an hour, downed power lines, tore off roofs and uprooted trees throughout New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

Hitler's Private Life

Eva Braun swallowed pill, Hitler used pistol, in strange death scene as Soviet guns boomed in Berlin.

By HEINZ LINGE, Hitler's Personal Valet
(Second Article in a 30-Part Series)

(World Copyright 1955)

BERLIN—At exactly ten minutes to four in the afternoon of April 30, 1945, a whiff of acrid smoke from a Walther pistol told me that Adolf Hitler had ended his life in a bunker 30 feet below the ruins of the Reich's Chancellery.

Throughout my long years of captivity with the Russians I have thought over and over again of that moment—Hitler's moment of despair. At the time it seemed my mind couldn't grasp the fact that the Fuehrer was dead, although I had known for five days that he had made up his mind not to try to escape from the quickly tightening Russian net around Berlin.

EXCLUSIVE to the TIMES

I had been with him in his moments of iron calm, and in moments when he was held in the grip of a secret terror, pacing up and down, up and down, forever stroking that lock of hair down over his forehead, his mouth twitching in a nervous grimace.

Now there was just that thin wisp of smoke. No noise, no crack of a pistol shot reached me from the bunker. For seconds I stood still. All was silent in the shelter. I held back, not understanding, perhaps not wanting to understand.

Then the silence was broken by the rumble of the Russian artillery. I realized there was no time to lose. I began to walk slowly to the door of Hitler's map room in the bunker . . .

Nearer to Him Than Any Other Man

Five minutes before, I had been standing at the salute, saying goodbye to the man I had served through 10 years of war and peace, nearer to him, I believe, than any other man in the world, as his valet and chief of his personal bodyguard.

At the door of the map room I paused, for I didn't relish the task ahead of me or the sight I knew would greet me. Again came the ominous rumble of the Russian bombardment and it seemed to me, so taut were my nerves, that already the guns sounded nearer.

I knew what had to be done. I had the Fuehrer's orders, and in death, as in life, they had to be carried out. He trusted me. And there in Berlin time was running out for all of us.

So I nerved myself to walk quietly into the room. There, almost upright in a sitting position on a couch, was the body of Adolf Hitler.

A small hole the size of a German silver mark showed on his right temple and a trickle of blood ran slowly down over his cheek. He was wearing a uniform which I had carefully laid out for him a few hours earlier. It was scarcely crumpled.

Death Must Have Come Instantly

One pistol, a 7.65 Walther, lay on the floor where it had dropped from his right hand. A yard or so away lay another gun of 6.35 caliber. The Fuehrer had not meant to make any mistake. Death must have come in an instant.

The body of Eva Braun—the only woman who counted in Hitler's life during the years I knew him—was sitting by his side. I believe she had died a few minutes before the Fuehrer. It was Hitler's wish that she should be with him in death as she had been for so many years in life — for the last 30 hours as his wife instead of as his mistress.

No mark showed on Eva Braun's face; it was as though she had fallen asleep. She had swallowed a capsule of poison, one of a dozen Hitler had gotten for just such a circumstance as this from an army doctor. They were for the women attached to his staff and for the wife of Dr. Goebbels, but above all for Eva.

Earlier that day my master had his favorite Alsatian dog destroyed. Its name was Blondi and Professor Haase, Hitler's former surgeon, had come around to the bunker to end its life with poison. Two other dogs belonging to the household had been shot. Hitler had been very fond of dogs.

It had been five days earlier, on the afternoon of April 25, that I had received a message from Krueger, an under-valet. "Linge," he told me urgently on the telephone, "the Fuehrer wants to see you. At once."

I hurried to the same map room in which Hitler had chosen to die. It was his headquarters, chart room, communications room—the focal point of the disintegrating government.

He had used the room almost all the time since the Russians had menaced Berlin. Small and simply furnished, it was in the greatest contrast to the vast chambers of the now-shattered Chancellery. A door on one side led to the Fuehrer's bedroom; a door on the other side opened into Eva Braun's room.

My own quarters opened off apartments occupied by the Goebbels family. As I walked quickly to Hitler's room, I won-

'Slum Empire' Trial Takes Unusual Turn

TORONTO (CP).—In an unusual legal step today, crown officials attempted to ensure that none of the 20 crown witnesses to be called against the alleged operators of a slum empire in downtown Toronto changes his evidence when the case goes to trial.

A special closed court was held at the city hall. All witnesses were required to give their testimony under oath. Any major change from what they said today before justice of the peace Crawford W. Guest could lead to prosecution for perjury, police said.

Six of the 20 were arrested Monday in a sweep by morality officers. They were booked as material witnesses without bail. Bail also was refused to brothers Charles and William Ingwer, Steve Feron and Linus Coghlan, all charged with keeping common bawdy houses.

POSSIBLE 92 CHARGES

A possible 92 charges may be laid, but crown officials said much depends on evidence put on the record today.

Authorities said "a very infrequently used" section of the Criminal Code was the basis for hearing today's evidence.

The slum empire allegedly is owned by Johanna Nemeth, of Panama and New York.

Described by police as "just a front", Johanna Nemeth may not figure largely in the current crackdown. No warrant has been issued for her although police said they would welcome a chance to question her.

NATO Chiefs Back Big 3 Proposals

PARIS (AP)—Foreign ministers of the Atlantic alliance today gave their general agreement to the Western Big Three's proposals for easing world tensions.

The ministers from other member countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization heard a lengthy statement from U.S. State Secretary Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Pinay explaining the joint memorandum which the West will present to the Soviet Union Thursday in Geneva.

At the end of a three-hour session, a NATO official said "there was general agreement on the basic proposals."

Dulles spoke on the kay section of the memorandum covering Western proposals for Germany's reunification and a general European security pact.

Macmillian spoke on disarmament proposals and pointed out that this problem is being handled by a UN subcommittee. He said the task at Geneva would be more to improve the atmosphere to help the actual work in the UN body.

Pinay presented the Big Three's views on improvement of East-West relations, mentioning trade, tourism and information.

REAFFIRMS POSITION

The new Greek foreign minister, Spyros Theotokis, made a statement on behalf of his government saying it wished to reaffirm its attachment to the Atlantic alliance. This was the only reference in the session to the recent Greek-Turkish tension which at one point had caused Athens to withdraw a Greek contingent from a scheduled NATO military manoeuvre.

Officials said that the current situation in the Middle East, particularly the threat of conflict between Israel and the Arab states in the wake of Czechoslovakian sales of arms to Egypt, has not yet been discussed.

Dulles, Macmillan and Pinay reached "complete agreement" Monday night on the memorandum with which they will confront Molotov at the meeting opening Thursday in Geneva. This was their joint position on the items listed for discussion:

1. German reunification: Real security in Europe is impossible unless the German people are permitted to come together under a single government, of their own choice, which can negotiate and sign a peace treaty for all Germany. Hence, Germany must be reunited by free elections throughout the divided country.

2. European security: To reassure the Kremlin against another aggression, the West is proposing a 14-power mutual defence pact joining the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg from NATO with the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. The West is willing to tie German unification and a European security pact together so both are achieved in parallel stages.

3. Disarmament: The west is

Labor MP Names 'Tip-Off Man' In British Diplomat-Spy Case

LONDON (AP) — A Labor member of Parliament today accused a former member of the British embassy staff in Washington of tipping off spies Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean that they were under investigation.

Lt.-Col. Marcus Lipton named Harold Philby, former first secretary of the embassy in Washington, as being the "third man" in the case.

Burgess and MacLean, high ranking British foreign office officials, disappeared in May, 1951, and now are presumed behind the Iron Curtain

Shortly after Parliament reconvened today from its two-month summer recess, Lipton tangled with Prime Minister Eden on the Red spy case.

Eden rejected a demand by the Laborite for the appointment of a special parliamentary committee to investigate the case. The prime minister added:

"The government themselves take the view that it is desirable to have a debate on this subject, in which I personally as prime minister shall be glad to take part."

The foreign office said Philby joined the service as a temporary officer with the acting rank of first secretary on Sept. 7, 1946. He resigned Sept. 18, 1951. His last post was in Washington and he served in Ankara.

Foreign office records do not show whether he held any other government appointment after his resignation from the foreign service. During the Second World War he was correspondent for the Times of London.

Philby is believed living just outside London. He could not be reached immediately for comment.

Tories Win Seat From Liberals

Upset Toronto Victory Hailed By Drew as Good Omen for Party

(From BUP and CP Dispatches)

TORONTO — Jubilant Conservatives today hailed the upset victory of Charles E. Rea in the Spadina by-election as a sign that their fortunes were changing in a drive to upset Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's Liberal administration.

Rea, who had been given little chance of winning and, until the late votes were counted, thought he would not make it, came from behind Monday night to win election to Parliament in the district that had voted Liberal for a quarter-century. He succeeded David A. Croll, who moved from the Commons into the Senate.

Conservative Leader George Drew, who was Ontario premier before he became opposition leader in Ottawa, said Rea and his supporters "proved there are few constituencies in Canada which cannot be won for the Conservative party in the next (general) election by a good candidate."

Samuel Godfrey, Liberal candidate, conceded defeat two hours after polls closed, and said he would lose by about 500 votes. At that time official figures had him 200 votes in front and it was another two hours before they confirmed his forecast.

Mr. Rea polled 6,708 votes to 6,108 for Mr. Godfrey. Joseph Salsberg, Communist Labor-Progressive who sat in the Ontario Legislature for 13 years, received 3,937 and Harry Waisglass, CCF, 2,938.

Standing in the 265-seat House of Commons after the Spadina vote: Liberal 169; Progressive Conservative 53; CCF 23; Social Credit 15; Independent 4; vacant 1. The vacancy is in St. Johns-Iberville-Napierville through death last Aug. 7 of Postmaster-General Coté.

It was the third loss for the Liberals in 15 by-elections since the 1953 general election. On Sept. 26 they lost Restigouche-Madawaska to the Progressive Conservatives and a year ago they were beaten by the CCF in Selkirk, Man. In the other 12 votes, the Liberals retained eight seats, Progressive Conservatives three and CCF one.

The Spadina vote was light, possibly due in part to bad weather. The total of 19,891 compares with 27,258 in 1953. There were 45,000 eligible voters.

A 52-year-old native of Brandon, Man., Mr. Rea went to school at Grimsby in the Niagara Peninsula. In 1929 he bought an insurance business at New Liskeard in northern Ontario and in 1934 founded his business in Toronto. He represented Toronto St. Patrick in the Ontario legislature from 1948 to 1951.

The campaign for Monday's election had a circus touch. Noon-hour street corner meetings were commonplace in the west-central riding which takes in Toronto's garment-making district. Trucks and autos, equipped with loudspeakers, made organized tours of the streets to proclaim slogans of the candidates, mingled with songs and martial music.

At one time it was estimated that 85 per cent of the population was Jewish. The estimate now is about 15 per cent.

COLDWELL ADVOCATES BARTER DEALS

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—CCF leader Coldwell Monday night urged that Canada make barter arrangements and accept non-dollar currencies to help sell farm products abroad.

The home market should be expanded and tariff policies re-examined, he also said in an address prepared for a public meeting in this fruit-growing area.

The remarks were contained in a partial text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Bonn Urges New Parleys On Saar Status

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar (AP) —Victorious German parties in the Saar called Monday night on the Western European Union to supervise a new governmental election in this little border territory to replace Premier Johannes Hoffman.

West German vice-chancellor Franz Bluecher—describing the Saarlanders' plebiscite against Europeanization as "a victory of reason"—led the Bonn cabinet in proposing new French-German negotiations on the fate of the long-disputed coal basin.

France sat tight, its 10-year economic control of the Saar obviously threatened by the upsurge of German national feeling, but there were indications from Paris that some kind of compromise would be sought.

Premier Edgar Faure and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer exchanged telegrams, expressing their conviction that German-French relations must not be upset by the results of the Saar election.

In other capitals of Europe, tied to both France and West Germany by the NATO alliance, anxiety and suspicion were manifest over the Saar's home-to-the fatherland trend.

QUEEN GREETS PORTUGUESE PRESIDENT

LONDON (AP) — Portuguese President Craveiro Lopes drove in glittering splendor through crowded London streets at the side of Queen Elizabeth today when he arrived on the first visit by the head of state of Britain's oldest ally in more than 50 years.

The Duke of Edinburgh, Princess Margaret, Queen Mother Elizabeth and other members of the Royal Family journeyed to Westminster pier to greet the president and Mrs. Lopes after their ceremonial progress up the Thames on a royal barge.

It was the first visit by a Portuguese head of state since 1904. The two countries have maintained unbroken friendly relations for more than 600 years.

Alaskan Newsprint Industry U.S. Answer to Price Hike?

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP)—Senator J. Glenn Beall (Rep., Md.) said in an interview Monday night he will ask Interior Secretary Douglas McKay about the possibility of developing an American newsprint industry in Alaska.

Beall made the statement on the heels of an announcement of a price increase of $5 per ton in newsprint by the Abitibi Power & Paper Company of Toronto, effective Nov. 1. Last week the St. Lawrence Corporation announced a similar increase.

Beall said "it sounds a little" as if Canadian producers are "trying to circumvent accusations of monopoly by trying to be subtle in raising their prices."

U.K. Holds Key In New Talks On Wheat Pact

Parley Opens On Wednesday

GENEVA (Reuters) — Grain experts from 65 countries meet here Wednesday to review a world situation in which there are almost two bushels of wheat available for every one sold.

The conference, organized by the United Nations, will be closely watched by 38 countries —including the world's wheat exporters—for some indication of the likely fate of the International Wheat Agreement, which expires next year.

The agreement, first drawn up in 1949 and designed to ensure stability in the world wheat trade, is currently meeting more criticism than in any time in its history.

One main item on the conference agenda will be to decide the general form and scope of a new international agreement.

The conference will discuss the problem of world surpluses, government support prices and the prices set up by the agreement.

GROW OWN GRAIN

A main criticism of the agreement is that its prices have tempted traditional wheat importers to grow their own grain and so aggravate the world surplus problem.

The world's exportable wheat supply now totals 1,500,000,000 bushels a year. Total demand is about 800,000,000 to 900,000,000 bushels.

Despite criticisms, supporters of the pact are confident that the prospects are reasonably good for an agreement which will embrace most of the world wheat trade.

Most eyes will be on the British delegation, since Britain dropped out of the agreement and its participation is considered almost essential to the success of a future pact. Some quarters here feel fairly sure she will re-enter.

SEE CANADIAN BACKING

Expert observers also believe that Canada—one of the world's biggest wheat-producing nations —will vote for renewal of the agreement. Western Canada grain farmers have already expressed their support.

Supporters of the pact believe the United States will agree to come into a new agreement if other countries want one. It is evident, however, that American support for the agreement has been lukewarm recently.

One of the world's largest producers outside the agreement is Argentina. Informed circles here think that her change in regime could indicate a change in policy that would bring Argentina into a new pact. They point out that Argentina has lost money on her previous bilateral agreements and that she may want to "put a floor" under her wheat prices in the future.

Countries invited to the conference include the Soviet Union, Poland and some eastern European countries. The Soviet Union has been showing increasing interest in the working of the agreement recently, grain experts say, and it is thought she may join a new pact if only for reasons of international relations.

Montreal Golf Site

MONTREAL (BUP)—The Canadian Open golf championship will move back to Montreal for the first time since 1950 next year, it was announced Monday by the House of Seagram, co-sponsors of the tournament.

No site or date was announced, although it was reported Beaconsfield was the preferred location.

UN's ATOMS-FOR-PEACE NEAR FRUITION—MARTIN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Only one hurdle remains to be cleared before agreement is reached on a resolution providing for the establishment of an atoms-for-peace agency, Health Minister Martin of Canada said today.

"I look forward to a final decision within a few days," said the chief of Canada's UN delegation.

Martin did not say what obstacle remains, but it apparently was one of degree or emphasis only.

"In principle, we have circumvented the big problem (membership)," the minister said.

Chief Mulligan Fired; Will Get $75 Pension

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police Chief Walter Mulligan, target of testimony charging graft and corruption, won his request to start a "new phase of life" when he was dismissed from his post Monday night.

The three man board of police commissioners met in-camera for 40 minutes and then said "the usefulness of Chief Mulligan to the city . . . is now at an end." The dismissal is effective Oct. 31.

The chief, on leave of absence at full salary of $10,236 a year since June 24, asked to be fired so he could collect an estimated $75-a-month pension.

Had he resigned, only the amount he paid into the superannuation plan would have been returned to him.

For the burly, 51-year-old son of a Liverpool policeman, it was the end of a career that began in 1927 as a third-grade constable on a broadway beat.

It also ended an eight and one-half-year reign as chief constable of a city now approaching a population of 400,000—a term unequalled in length in Vancouver's history.

His dismissal climaxed four months of developments unfolded by a royal commission investigating charges of graft and laxity in the 750-man force.

REQUESTED DISMISSAL

Chief Mulligan, who claimed he was destroyed by the methods of the public inquiry, requested his dismissal in a letter to the police commissioners last week.

"My former usefulness as chief constable is ended," he said.

"Therefore I propose that I should proceed to my next task; the starting of a new phase of life for my wife and myself.

Magistrate Oscar Orr, commission member, said the question of accepting a resignation could not be entertained until completion of the royal commission hearings under R. H. Tupper.

Magistrate Orr also said Mr. Tupper felt the police commission's action would not "obstruct" the police inquiry.

The royal commission, now adjourned awaiting a report from RCMP investigators, expects Mr. Mulligan to be available when sittings resume.

POLICE UNION HEAD CHARGED BY ROSSITER

VANCOUVER (CP)—Detective Fred Dougherty, president of the Vancouver police federal union, has been charged under the police department discipline code by acting chief Alan Rossiter Monday. He declined to give details.

Former Owner Of 'Half Way' Dies on Mainland

Word was received here today of the death in Vancouver, Monday, of Mike Dukowski, brother of Joe Dukowski, manager of the Victoria Memorial Arena.

Surviving, besides his wife and three children are two brothers, Joe of Victoria and Duke of Regina, former hockey star with the Chicago Black Hawks.

The funeral service will be held in Vancouver Thursday at 10 a.m.

END RESULT: HIGHER RATES

Phone Firm's Buying Methods Scored by Combines Prober

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian telephone companies which enjoy "legislative monopolies" should be obliged to buy their equipment on the open market where possible, suggests combines investigations chief T. D. MacDonald.

In his annual report, he disclosed Monday that a combines investigation was launched in the buying operations of an unidentified telephone company—following certain allegations by a group of Canadian citizens.

They charged that certain companies had combined to control the telephone equipment supply in an area and this was working to the detriment of telephone subscribers.

Mr. MacDonald said the application alleged that the telephone company was buying telephone equipment from associated companies at excessive and monopoly prices.

These prices were alleged to have resulted in higher rates to subscribers and lower dividends to the company's shareholders.

REGULATION THWARTED

The citizens further charged that profits were being funnelled from a company regulated by the board of transport commissioners into an unregulated associate company and that as a result, the regulation of the telephone company was in part defeated.

Mr. MacDonald said preliminary investigations showed that the allegations on purchasing procedures were substantially correct.

Trying to compare this with practices in other telephone companies, he found conditions varying widely. Moreover, he observed that no representations were made nor information received to indicate there were any collusive arrangements among the companies manufacturing and supplying telephone equipment. Therefore, for the time being the inquiry had to be dropped.

Conflict on the Columbia

U.S. SENATOR RICHARD NEUberger, who knows British Columbia and the adjoining parts of Canada probably better than any other member of our neighbor's senior chamber, thinks it is up to this country "to be reasonable" in working out a compromise with the U.S. for the use of Columbia River hydro potentials.

Senator Neuberger may be assured that Canada will be reasonable. But that reasonableness will, of course, take into full consideration the development of the Columbia which will be of greatest value to this nation.

That point cannot be ignored in the apparent difference of opinion expressed by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, and Governor Len Jordan, chairman of the United States section.

Gen. McNaughton has made public proposals for the use of Columbia River water in British Columbia—one of them a suggested diversion from the Columbia to the Fraser system. Gov. Jordan sees in such a plan "very great injury to the United States."

The national interests of the two countries are apparently in conflict—or so it seems from the views expressed by the respective chairmen of the Joint Commission.

Details of the schemes by which either would obtain maximum future value from the river system are matters understandable chiefly to engineers. But, in broad principles, they are not beyond the comprehension of the public in this province.

The controversy which arose when the British Columbia government last year attempted to negotiate with Kaiser interests to build a low-level dam below the Arrow Lakes has been educational in this part of the world. It has created a general awareness of the value of the Columbia, plus B.C. topography, as a gigantic source of industrial power.

A recapitulation of the essential facts may be informative. The Pacific Northwest states have created a huge industrial complex just below British Columbia on the basis of the hydro power made available there. At this point in development of the region, the United States is running short of water and the facilities to store it.

In British Columbia a start only has been made on the potential creation of a great hydro system which could bring to this country vast industrial expansion through the inducement of cheap power.

Recognizing that fact, Canadian authorities have given study to the best means of developing power and the McNaughton proposals are a part of the over-all plan which will probably emerge.

It would be incorrect and highly improper to advance any schemes which would damage existing U.S. interests now using Columbia River water.

However, when a longer view is taken, Canadians can hardly be expected to limit their capacities in order to encourage greater expansion in the northwest states. Senator Neuberger, who is widely informed on many aspects of the question, could scarcely consider it reasonable to ask Canada to facilitate further Pacific Northwest U.S. growth by reducing the potential similar growth in sight for this country.

Still a Trouble Spot

TWENTY-ONE YEARS AGO, when Adolf Hitler was getting up nerve enough to march into the Saarland, the highways of the German Rhineland were plastered with banners which read: "The Saar is German." Last week-end's voting in the tiny territory on the French-German border appears to bear out the claim.

The Saarlanders voted overwhelmingly against a French proposal to "Europeanize" their territory under a Western European Union commissioner. Although the alternative ostensibly was a continuation of the present French control of the Saar, defeat of the plan in reality constitutes a rejection of French domination.

Opponents of the proposal were almost entirely pro-German, and the result of the balloting is interpreted as a majority desire to re-unite with Germany.

In the light of the voting, France now feels it advisable to confer with West Germany once more on the fate of the territory. The plebiscite has naturally given great impetus among those, both in the Saar and in West Germany, who wish to see the political island re-united with the main body of Germans.

Paradoxically enough, Chancellor Adenauer of the Bonn Republic is not among these. He had backed the French plan whole-heartedly; indeed, agreement to hold the plebiscite had been one of the conditions of France's acquiescence in restoring independence to West Germany.

The Saar voting therefore leaves Chancellor Adenauer in an unfortunate position—a position already made uncomfortable by German reluctance to re-arm for NATO, and by the ever-present threat of public demands for reunification even on Soviet terms.

The Saar people are German in race, culture and language. Their land is rich in coal, but has few other natural resources. The coal and the abundant iron deposits of nearby French Lorraine form a natural economic unit. Under French influence the economic tie-up has been intensified by incorporating the territory into a French customs union and making French currency the legal tender. Much of the Saar's food comes from France, although Saar exports go to both France and Germany.

Today the Saarlanders face another chapter in their checkered history. The territory was given to France as reparations after the First Great War, was taken back by Hitler, and after the Second World War, came again under French control.

The tug-of-war between economics and racial association still continues, with prospects at present that the latter will win out.

It is evident in any case that the Saar problems cannot be allowed to become a matter of serious contention between West Germany and France in the present state of European affairs. Some more stable settlement must soon be made, in the interests of much wider considerations.

Rather Be Wright Than Red

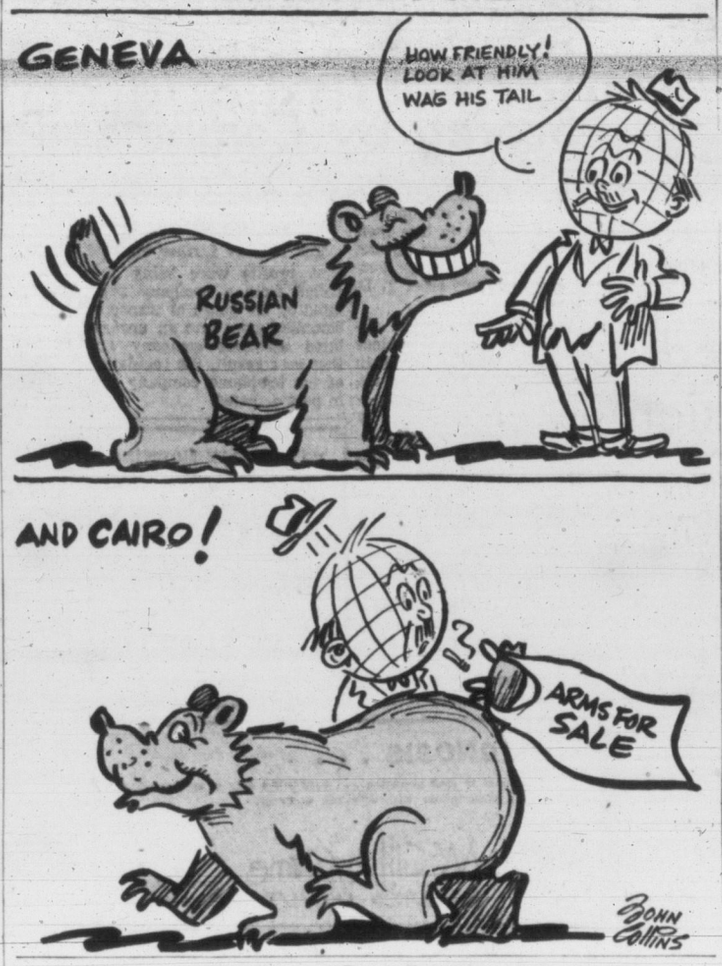
ACCORDING TO THE ASSOciated Press, Russia has finally credited the Wright brothers with pioneering flight.

A new encyclopedia published in that country says "The Wrights were the first masters of the art of piloting a plane in flight and in making a landing with the motor shut off. With their successfully conducted flights they facilitated the development of aviation."

The statement comes six years after the youth magazine Komsomol Pravda declared a Russian inventor named Mayhaisky built, and a man called Golubev piloted a plane 21 years before the event at Kittyhawk.

In the softer climate of a post-Geneva world, at least one man who rewrote history has himself been rewritten. Once more the writer who placed phony propaganda before accuracy has been repudiated—the man who would rather be read than right, or, in this case, red than Wright.

A Tail of Two Cities



The Power of Decision

(Extract from Arthur Bryant's article in The Illustrated London News)

THE supreme object of education should be to make a child realize, in some way or other, his or her part and purpose in the vast, bewildering drama of human existence.

For that child has been born with the power of decision; the power to decide at every moment of his or her life the actions which will surely and inevitably shape that life. That power of decision has to be exercised in a world over which the child has no other control and over which he will continue to have virtually no control even if he grows up to be a dictator or a millionaire.

We are creatures placed on an earth governed by might external forces which we cannot resist; time and death, for instance, are two of them which have us as irresistibly in their power as a floating feather is in that of an Atlantic storm.

And yet born into such a world, we have throughout every conscious moment of our existence that mysterious, inexplicable freedom of choice: of choosing, in great and small affairs alike, between courage and cowardice, love and hate, effort and sloth, self-control and self-indulgence, endurance and surrender. And as we choose at one moment, so will our choice at another be rendered easier or more difficult.

Nor does it seem easy to avoid the conclusion that this business of personal choice by the individual is the only rational explanation—the only one, that is, that can satisfy our fallible, limited reason—of the purpose of our existence.

Otherwise our tale is one "told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." Self-mastery, for each of the countless millions of souls passing through the world, is, so far as we can judge, the only explanation of the supreme mystery of all—that of personal consciousness.

One knows that it matters to oneself; it must, therefore, presumably matter to every other self. The world, the whole universe for all we can tell, is in Keate's words, "a vale of soul-making."

We are each of us here for a while, blessed or cursed, as we use it, with the creative capacity—the will or freedom of personal decision—to manufacture our own individual soul and character. For that end we do not know, but in our selves we experience, and with every year more fully, the extent of our success or, far more often, failure.

At the end of life we are left with nothing else but what we have made of ourselves by the exercise, for good or bad, of that power of decision. We make our own bed and lie on it.

To help a child to realize this, therefore, seems to me the supreme purpose of education. All the other things we teach him, knowledge of facts, culture, technology, accomplishments, rightly considered are merely means to help himself—the only real freedom the world offers.

A child, of course, can only be taught to realize this little by little; he has to learn by experience far more than by precept.

But to be shown, in little things as later in great things, that he has the power of decision over his inner self and that on the exercise of that power, now and hereafter, in ever growing measure his happiness in this world—and many of us believe in another—will depend; this is surely by far the most important lesson, parent or master, can teach a child. To fail to do so is like launching a boat on an ocean of storms without a rudder. For this reason I believe education without religion to be a contradiction in terms. It can serve no real purpose whatever.

Wellington, a realist is ever there was one, remarked that the only effect of educating children in literature, mathematics and science without religion would be to manufacture so many clever devils.

On a Wing and a Protest

From The Times (London)

WHATEVER else changes in the view out of an aeroplane window, the wing is always there.

Sometimes, it must be admitted, the long grey slab can be a nuisance, getting in the way of a splendid sight of the Queen Mary in mid-Atlantic or of a sunset on the hills of Oman or of one's own diminished backyard. But there it is, and everyone who has flown for long hours ends by becoming quite attached to the wing.

He is equally sure, such are its qualities, that it will remain attached to him. He has not the slightest doubt about it, having looked upon it and mused upon it in fair weather and foul.

It takes on its own distinct character, the character of an elder brother. It is steady, unassuming, dependable, uncomplicated.

The test pilot in the American cartoon who yelled through the wireless: "Say, are these wings supposed to flap?" was not only badly frightened; he was as incredulous and outraged as a man whose faithful dog, the companion of many years, had bitten him.

A wing simply does not flap. It does not do anything much.

It may shudder a bit in a storm, taking the strain, shaking the rain from itself. It is unmoved when sparks and sheets of flame (apparently unnoticed by the pilot) spurt so disconcertingly out of the engine. It lets bits of the engine glow, red hot, upon it. Things, like wheels and flaps, come out of it and go back again. It remains unmoved, like the Guards on parade.

A proper tribute to its sound qualities has been too long delayed.

"The company regrets to announce that Flight Number so-and-so is delayed a couple of hours." It may be something to do with the pressurizing, or the pumping system, or the retractable undercarriage. But who ever has heard that it is because the wing has gone wrong?

It would be like blaming a late dinner on a sudden fault in the dining table.

The men who used to stroll upon it in mid-air, while the crowds below waved and applauded, knew that it would never let them down. In the age of gadgets it remains simple, solid, and serene.

The traveller has only one niggling complaint to make. Often, in black night, one wishes it had a larger light on its tip, the better to be seen by other flying machines. Perhaps that is merely part of its essential modesty, but why not give it a larger light as a belated tribute?

As Our Readers See It

SECOND THE MOTION

I have great pleasure in endorsing Mr. Fyfe's remarks as to treatment in the DVA hospital.

I was a patient there on two occasions, and cannot speak too highly of the care which I received. I am especially grateful to Dr. Homer for his helpful treatment. I consider him to be in the highest rank in his profession, and doubt if his ability as a surgeon is equalled anywhere in the country.

I found the nurses and orderlies efficient and sympathetic and everything in the hospital was conducive to comfort and recovery.

WITHOUT CARPENTERS?

With reference to the two conflicting replies to my letter in the matter of Noah's Ark, and the supposed flood—I freely admit that the building of an "Ark" as described, would be a lot more than a man could do.

It simply will not do for any man with only his own natural power and the limited knowledge of 5,000 years ago to attempt such an impossible feat. And if, as the Bible states, Noah did build this Ark, then he must have received a gift of miraculous power to enable him to do that, and being enabled to use this gift of such power he did not need any carpenters' tools during all that time in building this Ark.

ANTI-FLUORIDATION

From the angle of your editorial of Oct. 21, one deduces that you have not studied the evidence produced by the opposition to fluoridation and are therefore unable to view the situation in its proper perspective.

Certainly I would not like to doubt your sincerity, but the policy of the fluoridation interests bears a remarkable resemblance to that of some lawyers who, when they know their case is weak, abuse the other party. Their record of distortion and defamation in the U.S. is anything but just and honorable. Even in Victoria those who differ from them are snobbishly regarded in terms indicating a very low order of intelligence, and instances are not wanting of those who, for their unwarranted attacks and false assertions, painfully know the bitter taste of humble pie.

As a public medium of information it would be refreshing if you would tell us, for a change, some of the facts produced by the laboratories of the independent biochemical scientists, and also let the people know that more American cities have rejected fluoridation, or have discontinued its use, than those communities which have installed it. Why is this? Because they have reasoned the many facets of the proposition from a public welfare and business standpoint on the basis of findings of those scientists who are not subservient to the aluminum industry or its agents.

The Nelson Touch

BBC London Letter

"EVERYONE who knows London knows Trafalgar Square with Nelson's Column in the middle of it," said Christopher Lloyd, assistant professor of history and English at the Royal Naval College at Greenwich, broadcasting recently on the BBC.

Since his death in 1805 Nelson has become the legendary hero of the British Navy, and last year over 100,000 people visited his flagship, the Victory, which is preserved at Portsmouth in the state she was in at the battle of Trafalgar. Victory is still the flagship of the Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet, who still holds official dinners in Nelson's cabin and receives his visitors on board.

Nelson is even more in mind than usual this year, the 150th anniversary of his victory at Trafalgar.

"For us—and indeed for the whole world—Lord Nelson is the emoodiment of sea power," said Lloyd. "The question I want to ask is why this battered little man, who lost an eye in one battle and his right arm in another, cast such a spell upon posterity? In what sense did he found the British naval tradition, seeing that the navy is much older than him, and that, long before his day, we can point to such naval heroes as Drake or Blake or Rodney?"

DRAMATIC DEATH

Nelson's death was dramatic for he was shot through the backbone just after he had broken the enemy's lines and was carried below to die. The ship's log read, "Firing continued until four-thirty when a victory having been reported to the Right Honorable Lord Nelson he died of his wound."

"No amount of eloquence can improve on that laconic and seamanlike entry," said Lloyd.

Nelson became the idol of subsequent generations of naval officers, but he had few of the conventional hero's qualities. His temperament was romantic and volatile, he was exceedingly vain, his behavior as a subordinate was unsatisfactory and he quarrelled with most of his superiors.

He was impatient, conceited, talked and wrote far too much and was excessively ambitious. But he was also courageous.

"Nelson was a man who did not know the meaning of fear," said Lloyd. "Only a completely fearless man could have adopted the tactics which won the three most complete naval victories in British history at the Nile, at Copenhagen, and at Trafalgar."

In explaining his brilliant but unorthodox tactics to his captains he called them the Nelson Touch, a phrase which has come to mean something wider and more fundamental.

"We now use it as a pointer to Nelson's genius—his offensive spirit, his daring to take all risks in order to destroy the enemy—above all, his unique power of leadership," Lloyd continued.

FIRE AND ICE

Nelson was an astonishing combination of fire and ice, an offensive spirit allied to the careful planning of a tactical genius which sufficed to make him the hero of both the navy and the nation. His signal at Trafalgar, "Engage the enemy more closely," became known as Nelson's Signal and was used again and again in two world wars, and another signal used then, "England expects that every man will do his duty," became world famous.

"It is not so well-known that the original wording of this signal was 'Nelson confides,' but that signalling difficulties altered it to the nobler, England expects.' It is worth recalling the point because it shows Nelson's habit of appealing personally to the men under him," Lloyd said.

Nelson ruled his men by love and affection and as a result both officers and ratings rose to every demand made upon them, and at his death tears were in all their eyes. He was far from perfect and not a man of culture or wide intellectual power; he was not great as Napoleon was great but he had greatness of soul.

"Napoleon could never have written that last prayer on the eve of Trafalgar," said Lloyd, "'May the Great God whom I worship, grant to my country, and for the benefit of Europe in general, a great and glorious victory! and may no misconduct in anyone tarnish it; and may humanity after victory be the predominant feature in the British fleet'."

Canada Watches Intently as the Big Four Foreign Ministers Prepare to Meet at Geneva

BY VICTOR MACKIE, from Ottawa

CANADA is hopeful that at the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva this week western diplomacy can make progress in convincing Russia that a united Germany within the framework of a European security system is preferable to a Germany divided. This country of course will not be represented at the Big Four conference, commencing Oct. 27, but it has a vital interest in the outcome. The new Geneva meetings will present an opportunity for the U.S.S.R. to demonstrate if the "smiles" and "friendly" spirit engendered at the last Geneva conference at the summit, have been sincere.

Mackie

Hon. L. B. Pearson, secretary of state for external affairs, during his tour of Russia this month, has encountered at first hand the Russian approach to foreign affairs. He found among the Russian leaders strong antagonism to Canada's participation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev is reported to have made a vigorous verbal attack on NATO and advised Canada through Mr. Pearson to "get out of NATO." Mr. Pearson patiently explained that NATO was designed as purely a defensive organization but he failed to convince Mr. Khrushchev.

It may have been his encounter with Mr. Khrushchev that led Mr. Pearson to assert at Singapore that he doubted that Canada would want to take on the "risky role" of explaining Russia's policies and motives to the United States.

Canada has some qualifications for explaining the American point of view to the Russians, and Mr. Pearson attempted this during his recent encounters with Communist leaders. But he has expressed doubt if many Canadians, including himself, would feel qualified to explain Soviet policies, motives, tactics and actions to the Americans.

The coming Geneva conference will provide another opportunity for the Russians to carry forward their policy of "goodwill." If Moscow does not actively continue her new role of friendliness at Geneva meetings the Communists stand to lose some of the new prestige they have succeeded in building up internationally.

On the agenda at Geneva will be:

1.—Reunification of Germany, coupled with European security.

2.—Disarmament.

3.—East-West contacts.

On the first point Canada is hopeful that some progress will be made. But in the light of Mr. Pearson's experiences during his talks with the Russian leaders that hope has been tempered until Canada is inclined to agree with United States secretary of state, John Foster Dulles that only "measured progress" may be expected. Certainly Canadian authorities are not optimistic to the point of expecting spectacular results.

On disarmament the best that can be hoped for is that some of the misunderstandings that have arisen will be cleared away. Agreements to permit a slow-down in the armaments race are not looked for at this stage, but some advance along the long, rocky road towards curtailment of arms may be made.

Agreement to increase contacts between East and West should be forthcoming. Already that is being achieved to some extent through an exchange of visiting groups and there is talk of an exchange of additional parliamentary delegations between the East and West.

Some of the obstacles towards German reunification may be surmounted in the view of Mr. Dulles. Canadian authorities trust that this will prove to be an accurate forecast. This is the main problem before the Big Four: the reunification of Germany within NATO.

Mr. Pearson has cited this as one of the key issues in the conflict of interests between the Soviet Union and Western Powers. Soviet policy in Europe since the war has been designed to prevent any German settlement which would permit the alignment of a rearmed Germany with the western powers.

"Surely under the overriding necessity of avoiding a war in which both sides have enough atom bombs to knock each other out, a way will be found to settle even such an important conflict of interests as existing in Germany by seeking a compromise through negotiation—a compromise in which the claims of German unification can be reconciled with those of Soviet and European security," Mr. Pearson wrote recently in Foreign Affairs.

"Such a compromise cannot be found, however, in the determination of the Soviet and its friends to weaken and ultimately destroy NATO and drive its overseas members out of Europe. About that there should be 'no possible, probable shadow of doubt, no possible doubt whatever.' NATO can safely disappear as a security agency only when these functions are absorbed by a United Nations which is able to guarantee the security of each by the collective action of all," he said.

Germany's potential threat in the future rather than the military and political activities permitted under the London and Paris agreement might be what Russia feared most. If such was the case guarantees could be worked out to banish that fear.

"Is it beyond the capacity of our diplomacy to convince the new leaders of Russia that a united Germany in NATO would be a defensive and defensible solution to the German problem, preferable in every way to an independent, armed Germany free-wheeling in the centre of Europe or to a Germany divided in a manner which cannot be permanent but which while it lasts frustrates European security or stability?" Mr. Pearson has asked.

Certainly if Russia continues in its determined hostility to NATO, attempting by all means possible to smash the western alliance, then it will be difficult to convert the "spirit of Geneva" into constructive and lasting diplomatic achievements at the forthcoming meetings "below the summit."

Fighting the National Slouch

LAST week a class of youngsters in the school next door practiced walking, two or three at a time, with book-sized blocks of wood on their heads.

Stott

I assumed they were being given a practical lesson in correct carriage.

They'd start out with all the dignity of contestants in an egg-and-spoon race and gingerly cross the width of their outdoor basketball court.

If they keep it up they may sometime attain the posture so admired in native women who carry bundles on their heads—the ones who used to appear in the National Geographic and in travelogues.

But they'll need an awful lot of practice before they reach that standard. The kids I watched were about as graceful as an amateur juggler trying to balance a broom stick on his chin. Their method of walking was erratic, self-conscious and bent-kneed. The blocks of wood fell to the tarvia with monotonous regularity—proving the foresight of teachers who used that substitute for books.

Frankly, the youngsters weren't doing too well with the exercise. How could they, with posture the thing it is in our day and age?

STRAIGHT BACKS

Boys who take service training do receive some instruction in proper stance and correct posture. But even they undergo a routine which is often so extreme it defeats itself. A youth's backbone is probably in the correct position when he's in uniform and standing at attention. But his spine is in jeopardy as soon as he tries that exaggerated Guards' stamp on the turn or coming to attention.

What's being done for girls, I just don't know. Around our house the Marilyn Monroe "progress" seems to be the model for walking. Somehow it gives the impression of an incipient earthquake, with the body threatening to fall apart at any time. Maybe the metaphor's too vigorous. The undulations and hip action aren't quite that vital. They imply, more, an early collapse and the disintegration of a mudpie left in a rainstorm.

In its male form, juvenile locomotion is usually a drag, one weary foot swinging tiredly past the other, bearing the overburdened weight of slouched shoulders. The impression seems to be that the boy has just played his heart out and exhausted all his physical resources in a game that was too tough.

Nor is it much better when, through some inducement, the boy's walk is speeded up. Accelerated, his highly independent feet go where they wish with no apparent influence from the mind. Let him run upstairs and chances are, if he doesn't fall down, that he'll manage to kick the wall on each side of the steps alternately.

CANADIAN ATTITUDE

We're told that the Canadian, by nature, is not interested or impressed by military carriage. Nor is he keen on group calisthenics of the style favored in Czechoslovakia and other European areas. He's no physical automaton, operating with precision. And this, in many ways, is a good thing.

Just the same, independence of form can be carried too far and usually is.

Churchill once announced his procedure for conserving energy. Never, he said, stand when you can sit; never sit when you can lie down. But I don't think he meant that youngsters should try to sit while they are standing up or lie down when they're sitting.

Perhaps the exercise I saw in the school yard last week will be repeated and maybe youngsters will learn a little more about posture from it. I hope so.

We once had in this town a public figure who, carried way by his own rhetoric, urged his hearers to bring their backbones to the front. It seems to me our youngsters are taking the admonition too literally. I'd rather see them leave the backbone where it's supposed to be. If they practice doing that, it'll be a whole lot easier for them when, approaching middle age, they have their pictures taken in swim suits.

To the average man over forty, holding his stomach in for a snapshot is just too exhausting. He should have started training for it in his youth.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Land of High Ceilings

LONDON—A family from the other side of the Atlantic has just moved in next door. As is the wont of women, my wife and the new woman next door were comparing notes across the garden wall and I overheard our neighbor say, "the height of the ceilings!"

Reyburn

Now, that's something we've got used to through living here several years. We had forgotten the customary low ceilings of houses in Canada, especially those erected in a hurry in recent years by speculators. In houses such as those you always know when you need a haircut, when your hair starts scraping on the ceiling.

But this is the land of the high ceiling. This applies in particular to old and what we like to call venerable houses such as the one we occupy. It is 100 years old and is either Late Regency or Early Victorian. Architecture is high on my list of things I know nothing about but I've lived here long enough to know that "Regency" is attractive and "Victorian" as shocking. So we usually get in under the wire by telling people that our house is Late Regency.

* * *

The ceilings in this house, provided there isn't too much low cloud, are really something to be seen. Even in the basement they are higher than those of the average Canadian home. In the living room, the library (sounds good but it only amounts to a couple of dictionaries, some publishers' review copies and last year's Railway Guide), and the bedrooms, they are so high that you can only just reach them standing on the top of a stepladder. I know, because I've been doing some painting and that's how you have to tackle them.

I was driven to painting some of the rooms by the sight of my wife trying it. She is always getting the yen to paint. It is usually preceded by the constant repeating of "This room looks so shabby it's a disgrace." I always tell her I'll get round to it but I invariably get involved in some project (something I'm writing that is going to set the world on fire) and I never do get round to it.

This is her cue to do the job herself and there's nothing more calculated to rouse a man into painting activity than seeing a woman try to do it. Women always distribute paint on everything. Not just the walls and ceiling but also the mantelpiece, doorknobs, light switches—any and everything in sight. Try to tell them that they should leave some bits of contrast in the room but it does no good.

On top of this, there was another, frightening, aspect of my wife trying to paint in this house. To get at the ceilings she had to stand atop a stepladder with our daily help holding her ankles to avoid calamity.

* * *

This finally got me going on painting. But after numerous evenings and week-ends at it, I've given up, definitely. It's too hard on the nerves, balancing on top of a stepladder with a can of paint in your spare hand attacking the ceilings and the tops of the walls.

All the time I had to fight a mental hazard. I would not succumb to that old gag about stepping back to admire my work.

I waited until I was firmly on the floor before stepping back to admire the finished job, and promptly tripped over a bucket. The half-full can of paint shot out of my hand into the air, landing in great splurts all over me, the carpets and the skirting boards.

As I worked far into the night to do something about the carpet, my wife showed great restraint. She remained silent. She could so easily have said: "Now who's distributing paint on everything?"

'Royal Soap Opera' Inept, Undignified

Punch Editor Warns Royal Family They Just Can't Have It Both Ways

(The following is a digest of a commentary, "Royal Soap Opera," written by Malcolm Muggeridge, editor of Punch, for the London magazine New Statesman and Nation.)

By MALCOLM MUGGERIDGE
(Distributed By United Press)

There probably are quite a lot of people—more than might be supposed—who, like myself, feel that another newspaper photograph of a member of the Royal Family will be more than they can bear.

Even Princess Anne, a doubtless estimable child, becomes abhorrent by constant repetition. Already she has that curious characteristic gesture of limply holding up her hand to ackhowledge applause. The Queen Mother, the Duke of Edinburgh, Nanny Lightbody, Group Capt. Townsend — the whole show is utterly out of hand and there is a much graver danger than might superficially appear that a strong reaction against it may be produced.

It may be argued that it is the general public who require this adulation of the Royal family, and that the newspapers, magazines and the B.B.C., in catering for it, are merely meeting the public's requirements in this, as they do in any other field.

BAD FOR EVERYBODY

The fact remains that tedious adulation of the Royal family is bad for them, for the public, and ultimately for the monarchial institution itself.

Of course it is not their fault, though I suspect that they develop a taste for the publicity, which, in theory, they find so repugnant. This is merely human. It applies in one form or another to everyone. At the same time, the Royal family ought to be properly advised on how to prevent themselves and their lives from becoming a sort of royal soap opera.

Nothing is more difficult than to maintain the prestige of an institution which is accorded the respect and accoutrements of power without the reality. Indeed it could be said that popularity is fatal to monarchy. The Russian monarchy was never so popular, or treated to such scenes of insensate adulation as in 1914; and even for Farouk's wedding the streets of Cairo were crammed with cheering Egyptians. Yet when a few years later, the czar and his family were cruelly shot down in a cellar and no one seemed to care much, and most, if not all, eyes were dry in Egypt when Farouk made off.

It was the very fatuity of adulation and sycophancy to which King Edward VIII, as Prince of Wales, was subjected which made the reaction so much the greater when the soap opera took, from the point of view of those in authority over us, an ugly turn. The whole question of the relations with Mrs. Simpson might have been handled sensibly if sense had prevailed before.

ERSATZ RELIGION

The probability is, I suppose, that the monarchy has become a kind of ersatz religion. Among other solaces, like Johnnie Ray and dreams of winning a football pool and Lollobrigida, is royalty. The people one sees staring through the railings of Buckingham Palace even when the Queen is not in residence are like forlorn worshippers at one of those shrines, whether Christian or Hindu or Buddhist, which depend on some obviously bogus miraculous happening.

Yet . . . has even the foreign office ever devised a more inept communique than the one about no statement of Princess Margaret's future being contemplated at present? If the intention had been to give the story another shove in the arm no more effective device could have been adopted. I believe myself that the little daughter of Princess Margaret's week-end host who told reporters that the Princess and the Group Captain had looked at all the Sunday papers and just loved them, was speaking the truth.

If there were a Republican party today it might get quite a few recruits. The simple fact is that the United States' presidency today is a far more dignified institution than the British monarchy. It is accepted that the president must be "put over" by all the vast and diverse apparatus of mass communications. If the result lacks elegance, at least the impression created is of efficiency and forethought.

WHAT A RELIEF!

Just imagine if Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Townsend, instead of being trailed about the country, had called a press conference and explained simply and in their own words just how matters stood. What a relief for us all!

The objection, no doubt, would be that such a press conference would be undignified. In fact, it wouldn't be nearly as undignified as what has happened. The royal family and their advisers have really got to make up their minds — do they want to be part of the mystique of the century of the common man or to be an institutional monarchy; to ride, as it were, in a glass coach or on bicycles; to provide the tabloids with a running serial or to live simply and unaffectedly among their subjects like the Dutch and Scandinavian royal families. What they cannot do is have it both ways.

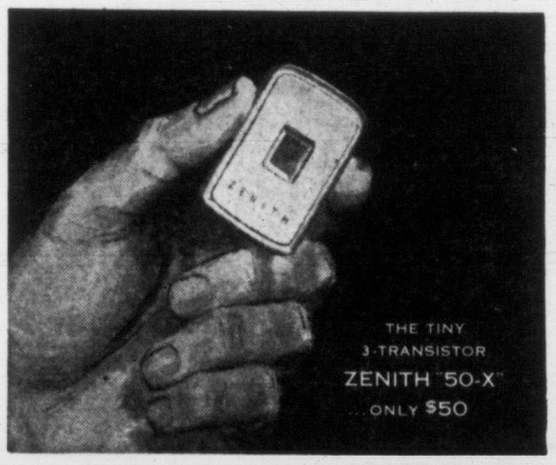
A DREAM COMES TRUE FOR CANADA'S HARD-OF-HEARING...

NOW! A tiny, light, full-powered hearing aid ...only $50 complete!



A FINEST-QUALITY, 3-TRANSISTOR ZENITH

Amazingly small, compact, efficient . . . backed by an ironclad guarantee of full satisfaction . . . yet selling for less than one-fourth the price of many comparable brands!

Ever since the miraculous discovery of tiny but expensive transistors, Zenith and its dealers have shared a dream with Canada's hard-of-hearing.

It seemed an impossible dream. A vision of superlative hearing aid efficiency, clarity, convenience, operating economy—and all at a price so very low that these benefits could be enjoyed by every hard-of-hearing person, in every walk of life.

Today, this "impossible" dream has become a reality! Just imagine . . . a highly efficient, full-powered 3-transistor hearing aid so small it can be worn in a woman's hair, as a brooch, or under a man's necktie. Yet it does not sell for $250 or $300, as do many other makes, but for only $50 complete. This, thanks to Zenith's 36 years of electronic experience and "know-how" plus the willingness of Zenith dealers to accept less profit per sale, in order to bring the security, happiness and opportunities of better hearing within easy reach of all.

Operating costs, too, are amazingly low. Just one tiny dry-cell battery, available everywhere, operates the "50-X" for about 10¢ a week instead of $1.00 to $2.00 a week for vacuum-tube instruments. These savings alone can pay the entire cost of the "50-X" in less than a year!

But that's not all! The Zenith "50-X" is sold with a 10-Day Money-Back Guarantee. If you are not completely satisfied . . . if you do not find that it equals or excels the performance of competitive makes selling for $200 or more, simply return it for full refund. And remember, the $50 price includes everything: High-performance air-conduction earphone, cord, stock earmold, One-Year Warranty and Five-Year Service Plan. Time payments, if you wish. Act now! A hearing aid today is a symbol of progress and intelligence . . . a victory over false pride!

* * *

Owing to heavy demand, orders for the Zenith "50-X" will be filled in the sequence received. See your Zenith Dealer now! His name is listed in the classified telephone directory. Or simply send coupon below for free literature and local dealer list.

Your Zenith hearing aid dealer also has four other superb new Zenith transistor models for you to choose from!

Please refer this announcement to a hard-of-hearing friend or relative—it may be the most important news in his life.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—Flax continued to show a strong tone at the close on the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Hedging sales were light and exporters and shippers made light purchases.

Barley prices firmed, aided by reports that feeding grades of oats and rye would be curtailed in shipment to the Lakehead.

Exporters took barley and the United Kingdom was said to have taken a parcel lot. A cargo of Canadian barley was also reported taken by Ireland.

Oats and rye trade was quiet with prices showing a firm undertone in a narrow range.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged except for Nos. 5 and 6 northerns, which were down five cents.

TORONTO (BUP)—A 58-year-old workman on the new Woodbine race track grandstand northwest of Toronto fell 39 feet to his death Monday when he slipped while trying to retrieve his hat, which was blown off.

The victim, Antonio Castoldo, lost his footing while chasing the hat across the partially completed framework of the grandstand.

80-MPH MALAHAT CHASE

Youth, 19, Guilty Of Five Charges

A wild auto chase over the Malahat, at speds up to 80 miles an hour early Monday morning resulted in the arrest of two Victoria men, on multiple charges.

Appearing in RCMP court Monday, the two, Allan Stanley Daykin, 22, and Roy Arnold Starck, 19, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and were remanded in custody for one week.

Trouble with an RCMP constable's car was the ironic, indirect cause of chase and arrest.

Constable Stanley Nowicki, of the Colwood detachment, had repaired the fuel line of his car by changing the carburetor Saturday night, and shortly after midnight, with Constable Con Derksen, tested it with a drive up the Malahat.

They saw Daykin and Starck on the Campbell-Bennett Construction project in suspicious circumstances. When the two fled the officers gave chase, which ended two and a half miles later when the policemen forced the fugitives to pull their car to the side of the highway near Goldstream Flats.

LOADED RIFLE

In the car were found three cases of tamping bags for dynamite charges, a first aid kit, a voltmeter and a loaded rifle.

In court Monday, Starck, in addition to admitting the theft charge, also pleaded guilty to charges of carrying a loaded firearm in a vehicle, careless driving and being a minor without auto insurance.

The firearm was confiscated and he was fined $25 or five days' imprisonment, $10 or two days and $25 or five days on the respective charges. On the careless driving count his driver's licence was suspended for a year.

PRAIRIE FIRE UNDER CONTROL

LONGVIEW, Alta. (CP)—A raging prairie fire, which threatened this village of 300 persons, 40 miles southeast of Calgary Monday, was brought under control at 9.15 p.m. by about 150 firefighters who had battled it for more than eight hours.

The fire was stopped about six miles from the town, after it had swept through an area about four miles wide and three miles long.

F-3H Jets Cost Four Lives

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy conceded Monday it lost a multi-million dollar "gamble" with F-3H Demon jets by powering the planes with engines too weak to fly them safely.

Investigators for a House of Representatives government operations subcommittee termed it a foul-up that cost the government $200,000,000 and the lives of four pilots.

"We've made an honest mistake," Rear Admiral James S. Russell, chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics, testified.

CAR WENT THROUGH LINE

School Children Testify In Careless Driving Case

Testimony of three elementary school pupils in city police court Monday helped convict Peter Hartnell, 600 Douglas of what Magistrate Henry Hall described as a "singularly high-handed piece of business."

Hartnell, the court found, had driven his car through a line of school children, forcing them to break up and driving over the foot of one child.

John Bower, James Mair and Gordon Cumming all about 10, testified they were in the line with other South Park school pupils returning on Douglas to classes from the Crystal Garden when the offense occurred.

G. C. Chater, of the South Park School staff said he was directing about 30 children in the line when Hartnell's car drove through it.

Hartnell said he was driving the car across a sidewalk to a place where he could wash it. He admitted the children had to move aside but claimed he did not think he was driving without reasonable consideration for others.

He was found guilty of careless driving, fined $35 and drew a recommendation for suspension of his driver's licence.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

The week-end in review, or now the pseudo poets are having a field day at the expense of the B.C. Lions.

"They didn't roar in '54,
Nor did they survive in '55
But When it comes to '56,
Fans want a dog with newer tricks."

But, really, the situation isn't too alarming. Now is it? The Lions won a couple of quick games at the start of the season and everyone went around shouting "Grey Cup here we come."

Mosienko

Then a couple of laddies got hurt and the Lions started losing games, and the same people as before started shouting "we want Stukus" (to get out).

You may be able to buy a football team in some places, but it's a little different than that in Canada. You get what you pay for in the imports, but the Canadian help is something you must acquire the best way you can; and experienced Canadian help is something not easily acquired. It must be developed. And as there are more Canadian players than imports on a football team, it should follow that a two-year team like the Lions was still in over its head this season.

Matter of fact Stuke told 'em in Vancouver that it would take at least three years to build a winner. That's the type of a contract he has. It says here he hasn't failed that contract, or anybody, yet.

* * *

Winnipeg Warriors arrive in town Friday night, and here's thinkin' that former Cougar Ed Mazur will get a special reception . . . the big fellow may have passed his NHL peak, but he won't go short of points in this league. . . . And tout those Warriors as a club to watch . . . with Bill Mosienko in the fold, they could give Edmonton Flyers a run for honors in the eastern division of the WHL. . . . Eight for eight is Colin Kilburn's goal record of the moment, and that unit is going fine. . . . But as Babe Pratt once said: Some fellows, when they get out here on the west coast, figure that because the weather is so mild they're still on vacation—the last one courtesy of boss man Fred Hutchinson, and he doesn't mean the kids. . . .

"Too many missed opportunities" is the way coach Ed Olson described the Cougars' loss to New Westminster Saturday night. . . . heard too that all isn't sunshine in the house of Harry Sonshine, the Toronto Argonaut mastermind . . . and what ever became of those wordy epistles from Tommy Carson of the basketball association? . . . Tommy used to keep us informed, but no more does his pen ink those testimonials, or have we been stricken from the list for disputing one of his decisions? What a soccer fan wants to know, and he blames us for the publicity on the fellow, is whether Willie Hamilton is going to play, or is NOT going to play for the Strathcona soccer team? A good question. . . . Willie didn't play Saturday because he was working. . . . It was not our decree, Mr. Caller, that he didn't play, but we'll pass on the thought that public "should be informed, not misinformed." . . . That hurts more than does a defeat. . . .

* * *

The rumor department has worked this one out. . . . Tony Schneider, the former Cougar, is being sought by Seattle Americans . . . or . . . Tony Schneider, the former Cougar may turn up in the uniform of the Vancouver Canucks. Take your pick. . . . When Jack Bionda left the Shamrocks to join Toronto Maple Leafs, apparently neither he nor the Leafs were kidding . . . for Jack is a Leaf now, his name has been in the line-up regularly of late. . . .

By-passed in the news columns last week was the fact that Tony Bishop missed a perfect fivepin game by one frame . . . his total 440. . . .

Orange Bowl Strings Tied to Top Teams

NEW YORK (AP)—The Orange Bowl, once the poor cousin of the older and richer post-season U.S. college football events, can be excused for doing a little strutting itself these days.

With its exclusive Atlantic Coast-Big Seven tieup, the Miami, Fla., fixture has a lien on Maryland and Oklahoma, the two teams with the best chances of carrying perfect records to the end of the season.

Duke, Yale and Colorado were knocked from the unbeaten-untied ranks Saturday, leaving an even half-dozen with unsullied banners.

There are top-ranked Michigan; her three closest challengers, Maryland, Oklahoma and Navy; 2, 3 and 4 respectively; West Virginia, No. 8, and Holy Cross, No. 20.

FOOTBALL FORECAST

With the season a little more than half completed, the bowl situation stacks up approximately this way:

Rose Bowl—Michigan vs. UCLA.

Sugar Bowl—Auburn vs. West Virginia.

Cotton Bowl—Texas Christian vs. Georgia Tech.

Orange Bowl — Maryland vs. Oklahoma.

Both Maryland and Oklahoma seem to have easy paths the rest of the way after one-sided triumphs Saturday. Maryland smashed Syracuse, the conqueror of Army, 34-13, and Oklahoma shot back from a 0-14 deficit to smother Colorado, hitherto unbeaten, 56-21.

Maryland plays South Carolina next Saturday, then follows with Louisiana State, Clemson and George Washington. Oklahoma, riding a 24-game winning streak, has Kansas State, Missouri, Iowa State, Nebraska and Oklahoma A and M in order.

TOUGH OPPOSITION

Michigan, which pulled out a 14-13 squeaker over Illinois, has a lineup of tough Big Ten opponents, Iowa next Saturday, then Illinois, Indiana and finally Ohio State.

Ohio State gained a virtual tie with Michigan in the Big Ten race by upsetting Wisconsin 26-16. Michigan State, whose only loss was a close one to Michigan, remained dangerous by smashing Illinois 21-7.

Navy, 33-0 victor over Pennsylvania, plays Notre Dame Saturday. Even if they survive this, the Midshipmen must play Duke and Army.

West Virginia, which walloped Penn State 21-7, has a Nov. 12 date with rugged Pittsburgh, which battered fifth-ranked Duke into fumbling inefficiency 26-7.

Mrs. Lawson Cup Winner

Mrs. Ken Lawson, with a low gross of 251 for three medal rounds, won the "A" event of the Winter Cup competition at Uplands Golf Club. Winner of low net honors was Mrs. Barley Humber with net 230 for 54 holes.

In the "B" event, Mrs. H. L. Woolison won low gross honors with 310, while Mrs. George Quincy had low net of 229.

Silver division winner of the par competition was Mrs. John Riddle, three up, while bronze division honors went to Mrs. W. Herbert, all square.

WINGS GET PRYSTAI, GIVE UP SANDFORD

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit Red Wings Monday acquired Metro Prystai from Chicago for the second time in a trade for Ed Sandford. Both are forwards.

It was the second time in five years that Prystai came to Detroit from the Black Hawks in a National Hockey League deal. The centre, born in Yorkton, Sask., originally came to the Wings as part of a nine-player swap that sent goalie Harry Lumley and defenceman Jack Stewart to the Hawks. He went back to Chicago in mid-season last year.

Ruggers Get Set To Roll

Seventeen Teams Plan League Entry

Far from being dead, as many of its detractors claim, English Rugby in Victoria is getting ready to kick up its heels in the liveliest fashion.

The only element lacking in local rugby plans is referees. There is a dire shortage of referees (anyone interested, contact Dick Ellis quickly) but there is an overflow of teams, players, plans and enthusiasm.

The Victoria Rugby Union this year plans to throw away the shoestring it has been operating on, and work on a big-league scale in hopes of luring fans back through the turnstiles.

In direct contrast to past years, when only a handful of teams answered the call of rugby season each year, this season's plans include four divisions, embracing a possible 17 teams. The stress this year will be on bettering local conditions with less concentration on hosting traveling teams.

SEASON OPENER

In the first division, tentatively scheduled to start operations on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, four teams are entered, one each from Oak Bay Wanderers and Victoria College and two from the James Bay Athletic Association. JBAA's second division team of last year, which captured the B.C. championship, is making the jump to the first division while the College entry will be bolstered by several outside players.

The teams will play each of the other three entries three times during the seasons and games with Vancouver teams will be interspersed in the schedule.

Victoria College, University School, Wanderers and Navy will make up the second division in the first half of the schedule with Vampires joining the circuit in the second half. Winners of the first and second halves will play off for the city title.

At least three teams, University School, Shawnigan Lake and Wanderers are expected to enter the under 125-pound league and it is hoped for five or more teams in the under 105-pound loop.

CUP SERIES

Late in March, a Victoria team will compete with Vancouver, Norwests and University of British Columbia in the annual McKechnie Cup competition.

The new executive of the Victoria Rugby Union has Stew Smith Sr. as president, Paddy Flannigan, secretary and Keith Macdonald treasurer and schedule chairman.

Creighton Surprise NHL Leader

MONTREAL (CP). — Dave Creighton, wearing the uniform of his fourth National Hockey League club, rates a special bow today as the man at the top of the point-getters in the early 1955-56 campaign.

Currently doing his centre-ice chores for the surprising New York Rangers, Creighton helped himself to two goals and two assists in last week's action and bounded from sixth place to first.

He is tied on points, at 10, with big Jean Beliveau, of Montreal Canadiens, but gets prior billing in the official statistics because of a higher goal production. Only a point away are Ron Murphy, another hustling Ranger, and Gordie Howe, of Detroit Red Wings, who failed to get a point last week. Maurice Richard, of Montreal, and Ted Lindsay, of Detroit, follow with eight points each.

Griffith Improves

WASHINGTON (AP)—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators baseball club, who has been critically ill, "continues to improve," Dr. George Resta reported Monday.

Griffith, 85 years old, suffered a stomach hemorrhage Saturday. His condition took a turn for the better Sunday night.

BROKEN NOSE

NEW YORK (CP) — Dave Creighton, New York Rangers' centre, suffered a broken nose late in Saturday night's National Hockey League game in Toronto.

Regals Surprise; Blank Flyers

Regina 4, Edmonton 0

EDMONTON (CP)—Goalie Lucien Dechene turned in a faultless netminding performance here Monday as Regina Regals turned back Edmonton Flyers 4-0 in a Western Hockey League game.

Dechene's shutout against the Flyers, currently on top of the WHL Prairie division, followed a 2-0 chore turned in against Saskatoon Quakers Saturday.

Gordon Stratton was the top marksman for the Regals, firing two goals while George Senick and Ray Manson scored the others. Bill Kyle assisted on three.

The young Regina club, league newcomers this year, pressed the defending champion Flyers into a state of disorganization throughout.

Regal forwards consistently stepped into Flyer passes and stole the puck from Flyer sticks with a display of man-to-man checking.

Manson opened the scoring with a slider from 25 feet out late in the first period. Senick scored again before the period ended with a similar effort that glanced in off Giles Boisvert's skates.

Stratton got both his markers in the second period. His first was a knee-high blast into the corner on a smooth pass from Kyle while his second was popped in from a scramble as Boisvert lost his footing.

Dechene had only two close calls. He picked the puck up safely on a point blank shot by Chuck Holmes and smothered another close-in drive while Regina was a man short.

Winnipeg Warriors play the Canucks at Vancouver tonight while Edmonton pays a return visit to Regina.

The Warriors were further strengthened this week by the acquisition of Skippy Burchell, former member of the Montreal Royals. Burchell also played a few games for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Burchell was the second player addition to the Warrior line-up in the last few days.

On Saturday coach Alf Pike announced the signing of long-time NHL star Bill Mosienko.

Meanwhile, from Calgary, the retirement of defenceman Pat Coburn was announced.

Victoria Cougars remain idle untile Friday night when they host the Warriors here in the first of two games this week. On Saturday the Cougars travel to Seattle.

Short-Handed Clippers Prove Long on Hustle

C & C Taxi 6, Navy 4; Nanaimo 6, Drakes 4

By DENNY BOYD

Ten men from Nanaimo whipped 15 men from Victoria and the kid-studded "have-nots" of C & C Taxi sent the Royal Canadian Navy packing Monday as the Vancouver Island Hockey League opened the Victoria portion of its 1955-56 schedule.

A sparse crowd of 861 well-spaced fans sat in and observed the beginning of two races:

(a) A dash between Drake Hotel and Nanaimo for first place.

(b) A potential battle between Navy and C & C Taxi to avoid the sucking swamp of last place.

Nanaimo, with only four substitutes occupying the bench, started slowly but won driving as they outlasted the deep-in-manpower but short-on-condition Drakes, 6-4.

The Taximen, replacing a lot of their old relics with four players brought up from the juvenile league, exhibited a wealth of sweat and vinegar in their hustling 6-4 victory over a Navy club that obviously needs more ice time.

Drakes Must Rate as Threat

Dick Irving's Drakes are going to give Clippers a peck of trouble this year. Drakes have all their old players back from previous years and have added large Ab Wiebe on defence; Steve Harris, one of the craftiest forwards in the league in former years; former Navy star winger Orv Coulter and newcomer Nick Sinchuk. In goal they have Fred Currah, the unorthodox net-minder who was with Navy last year. Currah helped Drakes beat Nanaimo Saturday night but was inclined to be erratic Monday night.

Clippers, pacing themselves guilefully in spite of their shortage of bodies, were without Arnie Dugan, Shad Yesowick, George Milford and Bud Dumont. They still won.

Names like George Hall, Wiebe, Toby Brown, Ron Bremner, Bernie Strongman and Al Arnold are missing from the C & C roster, but the Taximen have Spencer Simmonds in goal, a pint-sized but dangerous winger named Don Swanson and a line of Bob Large, Jack Wilson and Al Taylor. That line played juvenile hockey last year. The kids hope to use enthusiasm as a springboard to the senior league.

Sailors Still Rank as Unknowns

It will be a long time until the eventual status of Navy is known. The sailors drop out of the league for three weeks starting next week, naval manoeuvres preceding their ice duties.

The C & C club took a 2-1 lead after the first period and upped it to 3-1 as Simmonds locked the door in the second period. After Martin Fraser scored on the first face-off of the third period, C & C salted the game away with goals by Fred McColl, Del Brown and Taylor.

Drakes had a 1-0 bulge to show for the first period, but Clippers came on like a forest fire with three goals in each of the second and third periods.

Currah had only one shot to handle in the first period but blocked 11 in each of the next two periods as Clippers assumed control.

Yankees Get Scare; Rally to Earn Tie

SENDAI, Japan (UP)—The New York Yankees almost lost today to a picked Japanese team. The game was called at the end of the 10th inning because of darkness with the score tied at 1-1.

Three Japanese pitchers shut out the Yankees for eight innings and the one run off Whitey Ford in the third looked good enough to win.

A crowd of 30,000, including 5,000 GI's, watched the game.

Kaoru Betto, Mainchi Orions' manager, piloting the picked team of Central and Pacific League stars, sent a fourth pitcher, Lefty Shoichi Kaneda, to the mound in the ninth with left-handed batter Yogi Berra coming up.

Betto's strategy, however, failed because Berra singled to centre. Mickey Mantle, who was struck out three times in Tokyo by Kaneda, walked after a full count. Manager Casey Stengel had big Bill Skowron lay down a bunt, Berra going to third and Mantle to second.

Elston Howard hit a long fly to centre. Takao Sato of the Kokutetsu Swallows dropped the ball but Berra would have scored anyway after the catch. Andy Carey then grounded out. Stengel, in an effort to win, sent Bob Cerv to pinch hit for pitcher Don Larson but he flied out to right to retire the side.

LIONS LOSE AGAIN

James Sets Grid Record

By The Canadian Press

British Columbia Lions last flickering hope for a playoff spot in the Western Interprovincial Football Union was snuffed out Monday night in action highlighted by a rash of records.

At Winnipeg, before a crowd of 14,730 fans, the Blue Bombers trounced the Lions 24-13 to cinch third place, the last playoff spot, and wipe out Lions' last mathematical chance of ending the season in a deadlock with the Bombers.

At Calgary, with no playoff spot at stake, the last-place Stampeders walloped the second-place Saskatchewan Roughriders 24-6 in a game featured by some spectacular running and passing.

Edmonton Eskimos, already sure of first place and a bye into the playoffs, were idle. They close out the regular schedule at home Saturday night entertaining the Stampeders.

PLAYOFF PREVIEW

In the other half of the regular schedule finale, the Roughriders invade Winnipeg for a preview of the conference playoff semi-final to open Nov. 5.

At Winnipeg Monday night halfback Jerry James, the 21-year-old home-brew, set an unofficial conference ground - gaining record James, chosen last year the outstanding native football player, carried the ball for 143 yards to boost his total this season to 1,080 yards, 22 yards more than the previous high reached Saturday by fullback Normie Kwong of Edmonton.

Both James and Kwong, a Calgary product, have another game to play.

James carried the ball for two of Winnipeg's four touchdowns. The others were scored by fullback Lorne Benson and halfback Elton Taylor. All four were converted by quarterback Buddy Leake.

British Columbia touchdowns were scored by Byron Bailey and end Dan Edwards. Centre Ron Baker converted both and kicked for a single.

MAY HAVE WIFU MARK

In Calgary a WIFU record was believed set when quarterback Don Klosterman threw a forward to end Don McKenna who raff for a touchdown after catching the pass on his own 25-yard line.

The total gain on the play was 104 yards compared with the previous WIFU high of 100 yards, reached twice.

In 1950 Edmonton's Doug Pyzer caught a pass from Lindy Berry and the play resulted in a 100-yard gain. In 1951 Winnipeg's Jack Jacobs threw to end Neil Armstrong for another 100-yard play.

The 104-yard Calgary play was only one yard short of the Canadian record set last year when quarterback Sam Etcheverry of Montreal Alouettes threw to Hal Patterson.

But the Stamps saved another spectacular play for the crowd of 10,000, smallest of the 16-game season at Mewata Stadium.

In the third quarter, second-string quarterback Bill Stevenson threw a 58-yard forward from centre to end Willie Roberts in the Saskatchewan end zone.

Other Calgary touchdown were scored by Bob Meyers and Baz Nagle. End Tom Miner converted all four.

End Joe "The Toe" Aguirre, a veteran included in the Rider import quota only after another player was hurt, kicked two field goals to account for all Regina's points.

Miss Stampeder

CALGARY (CP)—Emily (Babs) Morgensen, a 21-year-old brunette from Bowness, a town just west of Calgary's city limits, was picked over eight other contestants as Miss Calgary Stampeder at halftime during the Stampeder-Roughrider game here Monday night.

Babs, an oil company secretary was born and educated in Calgary. Her measurements: 34-25-35.

20 m.p.h. HOCKEY NEEDS ENERGY

When hockey players break away at speeds of 15-20 m.p.h., they use up plenty of energy and between periods, they need a fast, safe pick-up. A recent survey made by Lloyd Percival of Sports College, showed that over 80% of the leading international athletic trainers recommend tea with added lemon or orange and honey as the best and safest way to pep up energy.

Tea can be used as an effective pick-up by anyone whose work calls for intensive physical or mental effort. To obtain full details of how this successful energy pick-up should be used, write to: Sports College, 12 Glen Road, Toronto, Ontario.

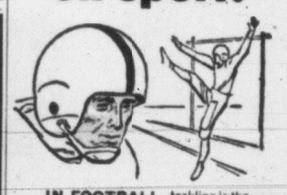
know the score on sport!



IN FOOTBALL, tackling is the key to good defence. Many people wonder how a small player can drive back and drop a hard charging ball carrier far heavier than the tackler. The answer is—momentum! If the small man is moving faster he will overcome the weight disadvantage.

Sports College recently conducted a series of tests to find the score on Philishave.
We found that Philishave, the rotary electric shaver, quickly removed whiskers and left the skin soft and smooth. And, unlike other shaving methods, even athletes faces made tender by perspiration were not irritated after shaving with Philishave. We've tested and we recommend Philishave, the rotary electric shaver.
Sincerely,
Lloyd Percival

Boxing Greats In Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP)—Ten former ring greats, including Gene Tunney, Mickey Walker, Benny Leonard and Harry Greb, have been elected to boxing's Hall of Fame.

The announcement was made Monday at the dedication ceremony for the hall of fame at the Ring magazine offices in Madison Square Garden building.

Others named to the hall of fame Monday were Sam Langford, the Boston tar baby, who fought from 1902 to 1923, former featherweight champions Terry McGovern and Abe Attell and Barbados Joe Walcott, onetime welterweight king. These four were voted in by the old timers' committee of 20.

Two heavyweights of the early 1800s, Britain's William Thompson Bendigo, and William Bill Richmond, the first American heavyweight of note, were selected for the list of "ancients" by the directors of the hall of fame.

The addition of the 10 made a total of 34 chosen for the hall in two years.

Boxing writers and sportscasters around the world voted on the modern group.

Hydroplane Mark

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — The world's speed record for 136-cubic-inch hydroplanes was broken twice Monday as the three-day national desert regatta ended.

Gene Souza of Oakland, Calif., powered his Scatterbrain through the time traps at 83.325 miles an hour to eclipse the old record of 81.271 set last summer by Bob Boehm of Healdsburg, Calif.

But Boehm later roared back into the record book with a time of 83.898.

Texas Giants To Feature Mat Program

A double main event of rugged proportions is in store for mat fans Thursday night at Victoria Ballroom on the regular weekly professional wrestling show.

Top half of the double main will be the battle of the Texas giants, six-foot nine-inch Tex McKenzie vs. seven-foot Sky Hi Lee. In the other half, Mr. Murder Mills, Detroit TV sensation, will practice mayhem on popular Dr. Timothy Geoghagen.

In the special event, another TV star, Ray Jennings of San Francisco, will match holds with Irish Jack Dillon.

First bout is at 8:30.

Chess Match Adjourned

Second game of the Victoria Chess Club's ladder final between T. N. Curteis and B. A. Potter was adjourned after three and one-half hours with Curteis holding a slight advantage. The game will be resumed later this week.

Potter presently leads the three-game final, 1-0.

Annual general meeting of the club will be held Friday at 7.30 p.m. at the clubrooms, 612 View Street. Officers will be elected and draw will be made for the championship and "B" tournaments. Anyone wishing to enter either tournament is requested to submit his name not later than Friday.

Does Kramer Hold Ace? To Visit Aussie Stars

HONOLULU (AP)—Tennis promoter Jack Kramer said Monday night he was going to Australia to ask Davis Cup stars Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall to change their minds and turn professional.

"Something has come up and they are in a pretty tough position," Kramer said. He would not explain or disclose whether he holds their contracts.

"I'll do my talking if the United States Lawn Tennis Association presses it," Kramer said.

Kramer said he plans to "clarify any misunderstanding that may exist as to the relationship of professional to amateur tennis."

"The two can live together and I hope to be able to see this viewpoint accepted," Kramer said. "I hope to talk to the leading professional tennis players in Australia regarding an invitation to participate in a number of major tournaments in this country next year."

Kramer said he also hoped to get in touch with Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad, Australian Davis Cup stars, "to discuss whatever plans they may have for the future with regard to their own careers."

As for horses, Kramer said there was a possibility "that some leading Australian horses will be brought to America to race and I may act as representative for the owners."

Vancouver Council Drafts Plebiscite On Sunday Sport

VANCOUVER (CP)—Another in the series of preliminary rounds in the battle for Sunday sport in Vancouver will be marked today when city council considers wording of a plebiscite for the December elections.

A special committee of aldermen in closed session Monday drafted a question for the plebiscite reading:

"Are you in favor of the city of Vancouver seeking legislation to permit the playing of athletic sports with an admission . . . Sundays between the hours of 1.30 and 6 p.m."

The Vancouver Council of Churches last week accepted "the idea" of a plebiscite but passed a resolution against such Sunday sport and decided to oppose any campaign in its favor.

KIMBERLEY, B.C. (CP)—Kimberley Dynamiters, of the Western International Hockey League ran roughshod over the Nelson Maple Leafs here Monday to win by a lopsided 10-1 score.

Webster Improved

NEW YORK (CP) — Alex Webster, star halfback with New York Giants who suffered a brain concussion in Sunday's U.S. pro football game here against Pittsburgh Steelers, is expected to be well enough to play by next week-end.

Webster, who played for Montreal Alouettes last season and was chosen the most valuable player in the Big Four, was injured in the fourth quarter when tackled after a 43-yard run.

Esquimalt Likes Juvenile Court As It Is Now

A move to consolidate all Greater Victoria juvenile court services was turned down as far as Esquimalt is concerned at a meeting of municipal council Monday.

Family and Children's Service, a provincial body serving Greater Victoria, said it "deplores" division of juvenile court into four separate units for the one area.

Caseworkers on behalf of young offenders find their work is multiplied unnecessarily by the existing duplication, a letter from the service explained.

"Our juvenile court has been most satisfatcory and I have been informed there have been only two cases this year in Esquimalt," Reeve A. C. Wurtele told council.

He said Police Chief Gilbert Stancombe feels the present system of handling juvenile cases in court at the municipal hall is adequate.

City Accountant Named Governor In B.C. Group

William T. Mann, practicing accountant in Victoria, was elected to the board of governors of the Certified General Accountants' Association of British Columbia at its annual convention in Vancouver.

Oliver M. Prentice, secretary-treasurer of Island Tug & Barge Ltd., and Charlton L. Smith, vice-president and secretary of the Credit Bureau of Victoria, were both admitted to honorary membership in the association in recognition of their services to the Victoria chapter.

Lawrence A. Wright, Sidney Roofing & Paper Co. Ltd., was presented with a scholarship for attaining highest marks in the province in the May examinations.

More than 250 members and their wives attended the graduating ceremony and dance, held in the ballroom at Hotel Vancouver.

New Christ Church Pulpit To Be Dedicated Sunday

An elaborately decorated hand-hewn English oak pulpit will be installed later this week in Christ Church Cathedral and dedicated at the 11 a.m. service Sunday by Archbishop Harold E. Sexton, it was announced today.

The pulpit was designed by Norman Haines and Canon Edward P. Laycock, who was elected archdeacon of the cathedral in 1924 and served here nine years.

Canon Laycock supervised construction of the pulpit while in England. It was built at Kingston, Surrey, and is 15th century design.

Models of fur bearing animals indigenous to B.C. are carved into the pulpit face as a reminder of the founding of Victoria by the Hudson's Bay Company.

Sell Surplus Wheat for Sterling --Or Give It Away, Says Premier

Canada should strive for a lower-priced dollar through wheat sales to sterling markets, and lower interest rates, domestically, according to Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

The premier said Canada should accept the pound sterling for its huge surplus wheat stocks, and that if any nation hasn't the money to purchase it "we should give it away."

"It is unsound economics to build up surplus stocks," he said, "because on the world market the people who purchase it know you have a surplus, and that depresses prices."

Commenting on the decline of the Canadian dollar in world financial circles, the premier repeated his contention that it is unsound financing to have this nation's dollar priced above that of the rich U.S.

The federal government in recent months has boosted interest rates to chartered banks to a high of 2½ per cent. Reason given for the move has been that U.S. capital is flowing out of the country and relocated where it will earn more.

"That was not the reason," said the premier. "They knew that the price of our dollar was too high, and took their capital back to the States, where they could get more American dollars for it."

He said that "once it (the Canadian dollar) gets down to a realistic level, American capital will come back again."

He said a high-priced dollar may be cause for pride by the average Canadian, but "it is a false pride, and pride goes before a fall."

DOMINION - PROVINCIAL TAX AGREEMENTS will be subject of an address by Colin Cameron, MP (CCF-Nanaimo), at Woodsworth House next Tuesday at 8 p.m. Mr. Cameron was a member of the B.C. Legislature from 1937 to 1945 and served two terms as president of the B.C.-Yukon CCF. He was defeated here in 1952 in a provincial election then went on to win the federal seat at Nanaimo in 1953.

13,000 Drivers Face $25 Fine; Failed to Renew 5-Year License

Thousands of B.C. motorists are driving without a valid driver's licence, after failing to renew their five-year licence in September.

Minimum fine for the offence is $25, with a maximum of $300.

George Lindsay, superintendent of the provincial motor vehicle office, says only 12,000 drivers renewed their licences in September, "considerably less than half of the expected 25,000."

Mr. Lindsay urged motorists to "check their licences for expiration dates, which coincides with the driver's birth date."

Renewals can be obtained at any of the 80 branch offices throughout the province.

The superintendent said motorists acting now can receive a renewal "with a minimum of delay," but that "delay problems in giving service are foreseen if drivers put off this important matter until the motor licence renewal period from January to March."

In that period, motor vehicle offices are usually jammed with passenger car and commercial vehicle owners seeking new licence plates.

The Champs-Elysees, famous avenue in Paris, was laid out in 1667 by Henry IV.

7 More Days' Work Remains On Admirals

Seven days of fine weather are all that will be needed to permit completion of Esquimalt's reconstructed Admirals Road, municipal engineer John Graeme reported to council Monday.

Final paving of the $162,800, mile-long stretch from Esquimalt Road to the municipal boundary, is held up because of wet weather.

Work on the Uganda-McNaughton sewer extension system is complete and residents will be given 18 months to connect domestic lines.

Pedestrian path between Esquimalt Road and Old Esquimalt Road will be re-located and illuminated at a cost not to exceed $300, council decided.

CNIB Area Names Campaign Leader

Nominal Fines On Gas Stations For Price Fix

VANCOUVER (CP)—Twenty-six service station operators Monday were fined $1 each by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson after they were convicted of combining to fix a price on gasoline in the Greater Vancouver area and combining to enhance the price of gasoline.

The Retail Merchants Association of Canada which had pleaded guilty to the same charges also was fined $1.

The operators were convicted Oct. 14 by a 12-man jury.

Mr. Justice Manson granted an injunction against the operators, prohibiting them from engaging in price-fixing.

The injunction, asked for by the attorneys-general of Canada and British Columbia, was refused in the case of the association after it was pointed out the group no longer represents gasoline vendors.

"You may console yourselves with the fact that this has all the appearance of being a test or warning case," the judge told the accused.

"A great many more, 400 or so, might have been indicted with you."

He told the dealers that it is regrettable that offences under the Combines Act have to be tried in criminal court. He said he did not believe that the crown was seeking a monetary penalty.

Similar charges against the Automotive Retailers' Association were adjourned until Jan. 9, after the group pleaded not guilty.

MAYOR CLAUDE HARRISON says: "With the bulk of the collecting completed, a great deal of the success of the Community Chest campaign will now depend on the response of those who have delayed their gifts. The charities of this community need the support of every citizen. Now is the opportunity for each to play his part."

India Plans Prohibition

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—A government committee called Monday for an immediate ban on public drinking as the first step toward total prohibition in India.

The abolition program of a 10-man special committee will, if accepted by the government, outlaw liquor within 2½ years—except for foreigners drinking in private.

The committee report, published Monday, recommends that all liquor advertising be banned after next April 1. It calls for an immediate ban on serving liquor in bars, hotels, restaurants, clubs and at social gatherings.

The constitution of the Indian republic already stipulates that prohibition shall come into effect, and the committee was set up last year to determine when and how.

Neighbors Paying For Oak Bay Health?

Esquimalt Councillor G. K. Sammon Monday night charged Oak Bay with having inadequate health facilities and enjoying other services at the expense of Victoria and Esquimalt.

"I'm not afraid to say it," Mr. Sammon said. "Oak Bay does not enjoy full health facilities. Some are at the expense of Victoria and the municipality of Esquimalt."

He spoke during discussion of a provincial department of health report on a single union health board for lower Vancouver Island.

The plan would provide uniform and more thorough health facilities for all municipalities on the lower Island.

"It's been a dream for 19 years, but at the moment it does not look like it will come about," the councillor said.

Oak Bay told an inter-municipal committee considering the union board that its existing health facilities are satisfactory.

"Anyone who wants an inoculation in Oak Bay goes and gets it at the Cook street health centre (city health and welfare centre)," Clr. Sammon said.

He also pointed out Oak Bay has no sanitary inspectors.

A cheaper and excellent service to the public could be offered if facilities of all municipalities were combined, council agreed.

The report, submitted by the deputy minister of health was received and filed.

POLICE, CHECKING CAR, WITNESSED FINAL CRASH

Two Esquimalt police officers had a ring-side seat to an accident which occurred last Tuesday on Esquimalt Road near Canteen.

Court was told Monday that a police car was following a car driven by Christopher Zachariasiewicz, RCN, when it went out of control for about 530 feet and crashed into a fence.

Zachariasiewicz was fined $40 or five days in jail and prohibited from driving for three months on a charge of criminally negligent driving.

Tory MP, Expelled by Party, Dies of Heart Attack

TORONTO (CP) — James Shannon Dempsey, expelled from the Progressive Conservative party during the Ontario election campaign this year, died Monday night of a heart attack.

The 68-year-old contractor-politician had represented Renfrew South for the last 10 years. He ran as an Independent Progressive Conservative and won re-election last June 9 after one of the biggest controversies to hit an Ontario election campaign in years.

The burly former lumber company owner was expelled by Premier Frost for failure to report a 1951 campaign contribution of $5,000.

Mr. Dempsey's body was found in his room in a downton hotel, where he lived when not in his hometown of Renfrew.

A chambermaid found the veteran politician slumped in a chair. Doctors said he died of a coronary thrombosis.

OFFICIALS OPTIMISTIC ON COMMUNITY CHEST

Community Chest officials were optimistic today that slow returns from canvassers will be speeded up and by Wednesday the drive for $210,000 in the Red Feather campaign should be at least two-thirds complete.

"There is considerable still to be expected from the residential campaign," said Chest chairman R. M. Moore today.

Collected to date has been $135,709.89, compared with $144,106.21 for the same period last year.

While the campaign is officially over, contributions are still being accepted for the 17 Red Feather services supported by citizen contributions.

These may be donated at Eaton's Music Centre, at the Information booth in the HBC or at Woodward's. These arrangements have been made for people who, for some reason or another, have not yet had a chance to give to the worthwhile cause.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

There is considerable danger Between Times may become labelled as a reactionary, an enemy of progress.

But once again I am compelled to take issue with a modern concept, and urge a return to the good old days.

This time, I am disagreeing with the American Home Lighting Institute, a no doubt estimable organization which, understandably enough, is opposed to the forces of darkness, and is all in favor of light, lots of light, and don't worry about the bill 'till the end of the month.

The American Home Lighting Institute has issued a communique which seems to be intended for the females of the species. At least, it starts out "Girls!" (Complete with capital "G" and exclamation point.)

"Girls!" says the American Home Lighting Institute. "Turn the lights on—not off—if you are seeking romance."

Now, there's a bit of advice for you. It's enough to make a man blow a fuse. Or at least pull the switch at the main. But wait until you hear WHY the American Home Lighting Institute suggests turning the lights ON in search of romance.

"Good lighting can do more to improve a woman's looks than the most expensive of cosmetics. Women should use the same lighting techniques long known to photographers, artists, and stage technicians."

And the reason for all this?

"Proper lighting erases facial lines and shadows, puts highlights in hair and makes the complexion seem softer and younger looking."

All I can say to the American Home Lighting Institute, this is a shocking concept, and I am against it.

If the electric light people are going to gang up with the cosmeticians, what chance is left for the poor male?

Call me a reactionary if you wish, but the good old days were better.

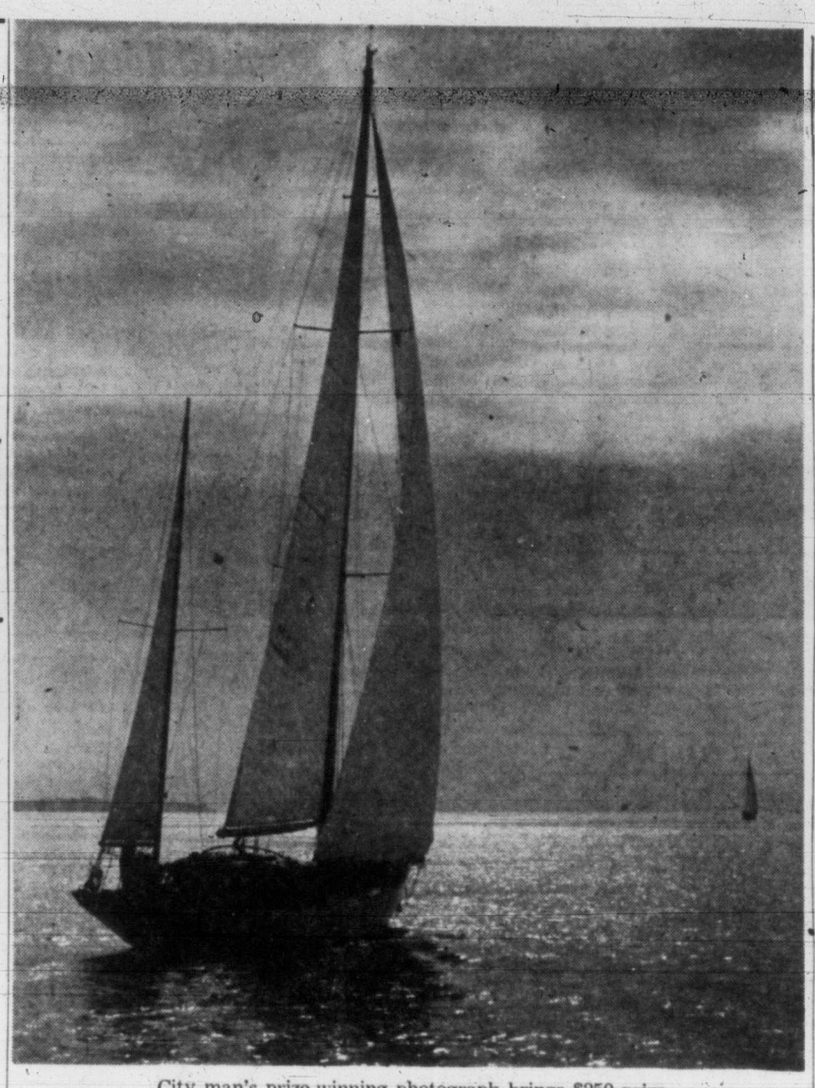
But let us close on a positive note.

My advice to men, is: Men! Follow one of two courses.

Make sure you get a good look at your intended, in bright sunlight before she puts her face on, and thus remain a bachelor.

Or turn out the lights in the good old-fashioned way, marry the girl, and remain in the dark the rest of your married life.

Which is the normal situation for husbands, anyway.



City man's prize-winning photograph brings $250 prize.

A Victoria man, James McVie, 2171 Bartlett, has captured top prize in the "sea class and scenes in still life" division of the National Newspaper Snapshot Contest with a prize of $250, contest officials announced today.

His print, "Racing at Dawn," was one of 150 pictures Mr. McVie took during the famed "Swiftsure" yacht classic here in May.

"This is one picture I didn't think would go very far," he said today.

The awards are sponsored by Canadian Kodak Co., and judging took place in Toronto.

There are four classifications in the contest, and entries are first judged at Washington, D.C., in an international event. Thousands of prints are submitted. The best of Canadian submissions, one in each class from each province, then go to Toronto where Canadian awards are made.

Mr. McVie, who ran an army photo unit during the war, had his first salon in 1947 and since that time has won about 700 awards in exhibition photography.

HALLOWEEN WARNING ISSUED

A Halloween warning was issued today by Fire Chief Frank Briers.

The chief warned retail store owners that permits must be obtained for storage of any amount of fireworks.

Stolen Fuses, 'Torpedoes' Bring Warning

Fear that someone in Victoria may be preparing to celebrate Halloween with dangerous explosives was expressed by city police today.

They say the person, or persons, in possession of 20 fuses and eight "torpedoes" stolen over the week-end from a CPR train caboose, may not be aware that, used incorrectly, the explosives could kill or injure.

Police urged the responsible party, or anyone knowing anything of the explosives, to turn them into the nearest police station or the CPR.

The torpedoes, used by railway workers to warn trains of approaching danger, are extremely dangerous, CPR officials warned.

DESCRIPTION

The torpedos are shaped like small pancakes, but are square, and are wrapped with red paper. They are about one-half an inch thick.

If they are struck by some object, or thrown to the pavement with force, they will explode and endanger nearby persons. Heat will also act as a detonator.

The fuses are long and candle-shaped and about 20 inches long.

They are about one and one-quarter inches in diameter and there is an iron spike in one end.

Thrown on a fire or given a severe jolt, the fuses are dangerous and could easily cause a death or loss or an arm or leg.

The theft was discovered by CPR police Sunday morning and reported to city police today.

A window in a caboose on the Johnson Street extension was smashed and entrance gained.

'Gang Busting' Charged In Esquimalt-Saanich

Each claiming to be the legal and official organization representing the federal constituency of Esquimalt-Saanich, the Progressive Conservative Associations held their annual meetings Monday night.

The two organizations ignored each other, one meeting in St. Luke's Hall and the other in Colwood Hall.

The split in the ranks of the Conservatives is mainly over a quarrel over leadership of the national Progressive Conservative party.

The Colwood group is opposed to the leadership of George Drew. It is supported by Deane Finlayson, B.C. Conservative leader.

The St. Luke's group, supported by Major-General G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, is backing the national leader.

CHARGE HURLED

Commenting on the two meetings, C. H. Rennie, newly-appointed president of the association which met at St. Luke's Hall, accused the Colwood group of using "gang busting tactics."

"I would like to know why they held their meeting on the same night and at the same time," he said. "They only want to cause trouble."

Mr. Rennie said his association was recognized as the official federal organization by the national association.

Maj.-Gen. Pearkes said he recognized the Colwood group as only representing the B.C. provincial Conservatives, but not the national party.

"I have no quarrel with them," he said. "But I regret that they profess themselves as anti-Drew. There is no anti-Drew movement elsewhere in Canada."

He said he supported the Colwood group only with regard to provincial activities.

"They have a big job to do in B.C., and that is where they should confine themselves, not in the national field," he said.

But James George, an official in the Colwood group, said his organization was the legal federal association, as it is formed in accordance with the constitution of the B.C. Conservative Association.

He charged the St. Luke's group was formed by a small group of Conservatives who supported Mr. Drew.

100-YEAR HISTORY

"My family have been Conservatives for over 100 years," he said. "B.C. Conservatives have always had the right to select their candidates for election. We are opposed to Mr. Drew as leader of the party."

The two associations at their annual meetings elected officers for the year 1955-56.

Officers in the pro-Drew group are as follows: Mr. Rennie, president; A. R. Walker, first vice-president; Mrs. Violet Eddy, second vice-president; Major W. C. Robert, third vice-president; Clifford Bunnis, secretary; George MacGregor, treasurer.

The Colwood anti-Drew group: Hugh Piggott, president; Mrs. E. G. Woodward, first vice-president; Mrs. Nora Lindsay, second vice-president; Frank Butler, third vice-president; Mrs. E. Ingram, secretary; Jack Cox, treasurer.

At the St. Luke's meeting, Gen. Pearkes said the "high-handed" action of the Liberals over a period of 20 years is beginning to catch up with the party.

He said the Conservative victory in the Spadina by-election in Toronto is an indication the people realize the need for a change in federal government.

"The heavy turnover of votes in recent elections clearly shows this," he said.

She was the daughter of Saanich Police Chief Josiah Bull and Mrs. Bull, 4201 Quadra.

Plans for New Span To Get Further Study

The problems of providing a new city garbage wharf out of general revenue, and building a new Point Ellice Bridge by an additional tax levy, are expected to get priority at a special meeting of the city public works committee Thursday night.

According to Ald. M. H. Mooney, the wording of a previous public works recommendation, which suggested financing of the bridge by a two-mill levy referendum, may be changed.

It is understood the committee now realizes a two-mill boost would be insufficient to finance a new bridge. At the present time, the city has in a reverted lands fund, about $260,000 which is earmarked for the new bridge. A two-mill increase in the tax rate, if approved in a December referendum, would yield only about $140,000.

NOT ENOUGH

This $400,000 is insufficient to pay the bridge costs—estimated as high as $600,000.

If the committee follows this line of reasoning, it is expected it will ask council to return the referendum resolution for revision.

The matter of the new garbage wharf is also considered by city authorities to be urgent.

The mayor said today its location, almost in the heart of the city, is a menace to public health. He said he asked the chairman of public works (Ald. Dowell) to investigate the matter a year ago.

The piling under the wharf is in need of replacement, and equipment such as conveyors and the incinerator are ready for replacement.

According to the mayor, the logical place for the incinerators would be at the Garbally Road yards, present headquarters for the city public works. It is felt by some officials a new garbage wharf would be ideally situated on almost the same site.

Mayor Harrison says the old wharf site would be a good location for the Fishermen's Wharf, now separated from the downtown area by a large residential area.

Also due for consideration is a land-fill system of garbage disposal which was suggested in the past for the Baker Brick & Tile property on Douglas near Topaz. However, it is expected a new area for the land-fill will be under discussion.

The committee meeting will not be open to the press.

Beer Parlor Waiter Wins Acquittal

Part-time waiter at the Churchill Hotel beer parlor, Ronald Pollard today won dismissal on a charge of serving beer to a person apparently under 21 years of age on Sept. 16.

The charge against Pollard, a naval rating, was interlocked with four others.

His employer, Victoria Hotel Co. Ltd., has been charged with allowing minors on the premises and three minors have pleaded guilty and paid fines on charge of being in a licensed premises.

Legal argument on the charge against the hotel company will be given in court Thursday. It is the initial prosecution of its type in Victoria under the new Liquor Act.

IDENTITY DOUBT

In dismissing the charge against Pollard today, Magistrate Henry C. Hall noted that on the occasion there was a minor on the premises and he was served with beer.

However, he said there was a doubt as to who served the minor, Ross L. Kennedy, 19, a sailor.

Pollard had testified he did not serve Kennedy or two girls who were also under age.

Kennedy and another sailor, George T. Adams, said Kennedy had not been served by Pollard.

The table at which Kennedy was sitting was served by two waiters during the course of the evening.

Bus Depot Bandit Cased Premises Carefully—Mercer

City police believe careful planning and extensive "casing" resulted in a clean getaway for the armed gunman who robbed Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. of about $450 on Saturday.

Deputy Chief Harry Mercer has again appealed to business places to notify the city detective office immediately any suspicious persons are seen loitering.

The deputy chief said it is believed the bandit "cased" the depot for two or three days before pulling the hold-up.

He believes the same careful planning was used in two other hold-ups in the last two weeks when a lone gunman robbed Empress Hotel coffee shop of $285 and Monterey Restaurant of $350.

Police are searching for a man about 25 years old, five feet eight inches tall, slimly built and dark complexioned.

RED-HOT MAMA RINGS CAN BURN UP EASILY

'Teen-age "red-hot mamas," who innocently attain that status by following the latest hep device of wearing poultry rings as a message-bearing decoration—much as a firefly gives out with his effulgence when a male firefly flitters by—had better watch out.

They may get really red hot in terms of thermal units because the flashy, innocuous looking rings are said to be inflammable to point of explosiveness.

Local poultry buyer Herbert Sing of Queens Avenue is responsible for the warning. He says he touched his cigaret tip to a ring the other day and it roared into flame.

Rings are brightly colored, inexpensive and are used by poultrymen to distinguish age and other characteristics of birds.

Girls use them same way hens do.

Red rings mean "I'm accepting date bids"; yellow, "booked up" and green, "hands off, there's a special boy."

Funeral Service For City Church Officer Thursday

Funeral services for Edward Lynch, 72, treasurer of First United Church who died here Saturday, will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. at McCall Bros.' chapel, and interment will be made at Royal Oak.

Born in Nova Scotia, he was a retired high school teacher, and had lived in Victoria for the last 15 years. He made his home at the YMCA, Blanshard Street.

Mr. Lynch was a member of Victoria North Kiwanis Club. A widower, he is survived by his son, Cmdr. John A. M. Lynch, HMCS Magnificent, and two sisters, Miss Bessie Lynch, 1039 McClure Street, and May, in Winnipeg.

'Borrowed Car Crashes After Chase

A police chase reaching speeds up to 70 miles per hour on Douglas Street early this morning brought a young city man before Magistrate Henry C. Hall in court.

Donald Michael, about 23, 1141 Palmer Road, pleaded guilty to a charge of taking an auto without consent of the owner, and was remanded to Wednesday for sentence.

Constable Walter Calwell testified he chased the accused with siren sounding until the chase ended in Saanich.

The car Michael was driving raced north on Douglas and crashed through two barricades near the Saanich Fire Hall and rolled over in a ditch.

The car, owned by Robert Good, 619½ Chatham, was badly damaged.

Constable Calwell said he and Mr. Good were searching for the auto in a police car at about 3.05 a.m. when they saw it being driven along Douglas.

The constable said he pulled up beside the car and sounded the siren. The driver "took off" north on Douglas, he told court.

Prosecutor Alan Bigelow noted that Michael has two previous convictions, one of wilful damage and one of theft of a cheque in July of this year.

Richards Appointed To Ethiopian Post

Former executive assistant to ex-premiers John Hart and Byron I. Johnson, Percy C. Richards, 1226 Tattersal Drive, will leave next Monday for Addis Ababa where he will enter the service of the government of Ethopia.

Mr. Richards has been appointed editor of the Ethiopian ministry of press and information in which post he will indirectly be associated with Neil Perry, former adviser to the B.C. department of finance, who is acting in a similar capacity in Ethiopia.

Born in Bristol, England, Mr. Richards came to Canada in 1912 and after attending public and high schools in Victoria entered newspaper work with The Times, later The Colonist and subsequently the United Press in San Francisco.

SECRETARY TO HART

He returned to Victoria in 1931 and worked with the Colonist until 1936 when he became secretary to Mr. Hart, then minister of finance, being appointed to the position of executive assistant when Mr. Hart became premier. He continued in that position with Mr. Hart's successor, Mr. Johnson, until the latter was defeated in the provincial general election of 1952.

Since then, Mr. Richards has been engaged in private business.

Active in community work, he was for seven years a member of the Victoria Public Library Commission, for two years on the Provincial Civil Defence Council during the Second World War and on the Vancouver Island executive of the war finance organization.

Some years ago he was chairman of the Fairfield United Church choir and later served a term as president of the Victoria Theatre Guild.

He was a prominent Mason and a past grand master of his lodge.

Mrs. Richards will accompany Mr. Richards to Addis Ababa where they will reside in government quarters for the indefinite term of his appointment.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Is it possible you have information as to the rise in taxes in Saanich municipality since 1945, and since 1950? J.W.G.

A. To give the figures in detail for all of the years would require more space than this column. In 1945 the rate was 31 mills and the total levied was $337,548. In 1950 the rate in one of the two school districts was 41.4 mills and in the other was 41.35 mills, and the total levied was $637,359. With these figures at your command, doubtless you can secure any other information you desire by making inquiries in official quarters.

Q. What was the population of Brandon, Man., in 1900? T.M.

A. The federal census of 1901 gave it a population of 5,620. The census of 1951 reported 20,598. There will be another census in 1956.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Recent Halifax Wedding Of Interest to Victoria

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Halifax, N.S., was scene of a full naval wedding recently when Miss Diana Wynyard Evans, daughter of Mrs. W. G. Evans, Halifax, became the bride of Lieut. (G) Keith Dunham Lewis, RCN, HMCS Naden, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Lewis, of Ottawa.

White chrysanthemums and shasta daisies were placed at the chancel steps, and white dahlias and daisies were at the altar. The choir sang during the ceremony and the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Commodore J. C. I. Edwards, the bride was gowned in white lace over satin. The gown was fashioned with a round neckline embroidered with mother-of-pearl sequins and seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered to lily points and the new long torso was banded with seed pearl and sequin embroidered lace. The full skirt, posed over crinolines and a hoop, was slightly en train. A rhinestone diamente tiara of silver held her fingertip length veil of illusion net. She wore French white satin shoes dotted with rhinestones and carried a small bouquet of shasta daisies and ivy.

Miss Mary Jane Miles of Montreal, Miss Patricia McCurdy and Mrs. Peter Evans attended the bride. They were gowned in peacock blue taffeta dresses fashioned with ballerina-length full skirts. Large Bertha collars styled straight across the front, came to V's in the backs, ending in large bows with streamers to the hems of the skirts. They wore matching satin shoes and carried bouquets of sprayed gold leaves and gold chrysanthemums. Their headdresses were of gold-sprayed ivy leaves.

Best man was Lieut. Cmdr. D. O. Campfield, and ushering guests to pews marked with white blooms and ribbons were Mr. Bruce Oland, Mr. Peter Evans, Lieut. (G) Ian McPherson, and Lieut. Ian Webster.

Autumn leaves filled the fireplace, forming a colorful background at a reception which followed at the home of the bride's mother. A small gold naval crown topped the wedding cake, which centred in a setting of white flowers and candles. Maj.-Gen. E. C. Plow, godfather of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip which would take them through the southern states and on to Victoria, the bride wore a green velveteen-fitted suit with ballerina skirt. Her cloche style hat was of matching velvet leaves. She wore brown pearlized accessories.

Lieut. and Mrs. Lewis will live in Victoria.

Victorians attending the wedding included Commodore and Mrs. J. C. I. Edwards.

Mission Workers Needed at Home As Well as Afield

The great mission work to be done in foreign fields and on the frontiers of our own country was recognized by Rev. Douglas Carr in an address at thankoffering meeting of the Oak Bay United Church Women's Missionary Society. The speaker pointed out, however, the duty of the church to be aware of the real need for workers to help the needy and unfortunate ones in our own cities.

Mrs. Jack Gillespie was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. C. C. Cooke. In recognition of her work in the WMS a life membership in the society was presented to Mrs. H. J. Hunt by Mrs. W. W. McPherson, on behalf of the group.

Parents of Blind Children Given Help by CNIB Service

The need for parents of blind children to accept the situation with a positive attitude was stressed at a gathering in the Blanshard Street headquarters of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind on Monday evening.

Speaker Miss Eileen Scott, supervisor of social welfare for the CNIB western division, said emphatically that the needs of the blind child are the same as those of the sighted and those needs can best be met in the home.

She described the parent-training service developed by the B.C. branch of CNIB which she heads. This service includes counselling, parent groups, newsletters and a program of integrating the blind child with the sighted at the kindergarten level.

"At first a staff member goes with the blind child to the kindergarten until there is a complete adjustment . . . not with the other children who usually accept immediately, but with the teacher who, in some instances, meets the situation with fear."

Training of parents, Miss Scott explained, differs in every home. Some parents require very little help and others need a lot of assistance. "Again it depends on the degree of acceptance of the situation," Miss Scott pointed out.

In connection with this service, Miss Scott travels to every point in British Columbia where there is a blind child. "There are 70 sightless children in the province at present," she says, "and so far I have been able to see and to help all but one."

Incidence of blindness in British Columbia in the past few years has been caused mainly by retrolental fibroplasia, an eye condition developed after birth. "We have now discovered the cause," Miss Scott explained, "and in the past year and a half no new cases have developed."

Second speaker was Mrs. R. E. Fitzpatrick, member of the provincial CNIB board of directors, who described a two-day work shop conference on the education and training of blind children and their parents, held in Vancouver earlier this year.

"It is understandable that among a group of parents of blind children differences of opinion arise," she explained. "Some want the CNIB to take over full training, others think the schools for the blind in the province should shoulder the full burden.

"With this in mind it was decided to organize the conference (the first of its kind to be held anywhere) with parents, representatives from the fields of medicine, public health, education and from agencies dealing with child and family problems. Consultant throughout was Dr. B. Lowenfeld, superintendent of the California State School for the Blind.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick pointed out that opportunity was given everyone to get a whole lot of things "off their chests" and at the same time get expert advice. "They soon began to see their problems in the right perspective and we ended the gathering on a keynot of optimism and confidence."

Following the speakers, two short films were shown "Johnny's New World" and "Fun Without Sight." Mme. Renee Archibald, president of the women's auxiliary, Victoria Branch of the CNIB, introduced the speakers and they were thanked by Miss Dorothy Stark, CNIB secretary. Coffee was served at conclusion of the meeting.

LETTER FROM NONA

Meets Russian Delegation on Plane Trip to San Francisco

Times' fashion editor, Nona Damaske, is off on a holiday trip to San Francisco and then Hawaii. She will write letters home occasionally during the trip, describing some of the interesting things she is seeing and doing. Here is her first letter:

"San Francisco, Calif.

"The flight down to California couldn't have been more perfect! The Seattle hockey team flew from Patricia Bay to Seattle with us. Certainly seems odd to see Eddie Dorohoy with the team that opposed us the previous night.

Nona

"I traveled from Seattle on the Western Airlines' Champagne Flight and it was wonderful! My seat companion was an old gentleman of 75 who was taking his first flight. He was quite deaf, and in a very loud voice I relayed all the captain's messages which came over the loud speaker. Plane capacity was 66 passengers but we did have a couple of empty seats.

"We had the 11-man Russian housing delegation aboard. As a group they were in no way different from any other business men. They laughed and chatted and took pictures through the plane windows and drank champagne with the rest of us. I wandered back to the observation lounge, sat down beside Vladimir Pojidaeff, the interpreter, and plucked up courage to introduce myself. (We had all been given morning papers as we left Seattle and their pictures were in the paper, so I was able to recognize the interpreter.)

"I asked him what his delegation thought of American women's fashions. He said American women were smartly dressed but the ladies were too thin.

"I also had a chat with three soldiers who had landed in Seattle that morning aboard the General Mann. They were returning home after 19 months in Korea. They looked weary but of course tremendously happy to be back in the U.S.A.

"There were about 30 men, including photographers, on the field to meet the plane and the Russians lined up on the steps to have their pictures taken.

Picks Figs From Trees, Walnuts From Ground

"The past few days I have been in Los Altos, 45 miles from San Francisco, with my sister-in-law. The weather is warm and sunny and we are spending a lot of time in the garden. I have picked lemons and figs and eaten so many walnuts from under the tree that now I don't think I shall ever enjoy them any other way.

"We drove in to SF one day for luncheon at the St. Francis Hotel and a fashion show at The White House, sponsored by Charm Magazine and entitled "Career Girl." Tweeds have certainly taken the fashion world by storm down here but our tweeds in the same price range are much finer quality. The models had their hair done by Farrell Gardner, who has twice been to Eaton's, Victoria, as hair stylist.

"It was fun to see him and he is going to do my hair before I sail on the Lurline for Honolulu.

"I've toured the grounds of Stanford University, visited the darling college shops in Palo Alto, and yesterday drove again to San Francisco for cocktails, dinner and the opera. Such a thrill to attend a performance at the absolutely stupendous War Memorial Opera House. It was Renata Teboldi, Richard Tucker and Robert Weede in Puccini's "Tosca." Beautiful music, exquisitely dressed women and the amazing theatre! Such an appreciative audience, too. They stood and applauded so vigorously after one of Miss Teboldi's arias that she repeated it. That is apparently almost never done but the audience just would not sit down.

"I met Mildred and Gerald Stelck in the foyer and it was fun finding someone from home. Mildred looked lovely in a sheath gown in the new Oriental brocade. (The Oriental influence is very noticeable in after-five dresses). Mildred and Gerald had come down especially for the opera season and "Tosca" was their eighth opera.

"'Bye for now . . . I'll be writing again in a few days."

Now Living in Ontario

Mr. and Mrs. William Fletcher Leishman, who were married in an afternoon ceremony in Metropolitan United Church recently, are making their new home in Peterborough, Ont. The bride is the former Miss Jean Elizabeth McKee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. McKee, 1046 Sutlej Street, and her groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Leishman, Toronto, Ont. (Leonard Holmes Photo.)

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Allan Rae Married Saturday in St. Alban's

Before an altar banked with yellow and white chrysanthemums, Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh heard Miss Margaret Lillian Smith, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, 1534 Edgeware Road, exchange wedding vows with Barry Allan Rae, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Rae, 2823 Murray Drive. The ceremony took place in St. Alban's Anglican Church. Mrs. W. Gillespie sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the fair-haired bride wore a floor-length strapless gown fashioned with Chantilly lace ending in petal points at the torso line, from which billowed layers of nylon net over taffeta. Her Chantilly lace jacket was fashioned with a Peter Pan collar and lily point sleeves. A net bonnet and clusters of lily of the valley held her fingertip veil of illusion net edged with lace. White heather from Scotland was in her bouquet of talisman roses.

Miss Shirley Smith was maid of honor for her sister, and chose a strapless gown of blue lace and nylon net over taffeta. Her short sleeved lace jacket featured a Peter Pan collar. Bridesmaid, Miss Eleanor Coward, Sidney, wore a strapless dusky pink floor-length gown of nylon net over taffeta with bouffant skirt. Her matching jacket of net had a stand-up collar. Miss Judy Howard was junior bridesmaid in a maize taffeta floor-length gown, with sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves and bouffant overskirt of nylon net. They wore matching bandeaux of pleated net sprinkled with sequins and carried bouquets of contrasting chrysanthemums.

Little Victoria Howard was flower girl in a dainty floor length hooped gown of maize taffeta with sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves. She wore a matching bandeau of net and carried a nosegay of fall flowers. George Blair of Calgary was best man and Harry Hansen and Robert Smith, Jr., brother of the bride, were ushers.

A reception was held in the Golden Slipper Ballroom, where covers were laid for 168 guests. Mrs. A. Morgan, Dean Morgan and Gary Howard provided music for dancing.

For a honeymoon in Vancouver and Seattle, Mrs. Rae chose a suit of French blue nubby wool with pencil slim skirt and short box coat with matching blue and white accessories. She wore an orchid corsage.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. B. Rae will live in the Birchwood Apartments, Pandora Avenue.

BETTY HUTTON IN 60-MINUTE 'COMEBACK' ON C-4 AT 8

WEEK-END COMMENT—In spite of our beefs that he often spends too much time for "plugs," we are the first to admit that Ed Sullivan and his variety show will be around for a good long time. Last Sunday night his dancers were superb and the D'Oyly Carte selections from the Mikado were a privilege to watch and to hear. We are wondering if the competitive English films on another channel are eating into his audience. Somehow we doubt it. . . .

★ ★ ★

Highlight of the week-end for us was the wondrous 90-minutes of enchanting entertainment served up by Mary Martin and Noel Coward. To our mind it was a theatrical treat all too seldom served up by TV. On the other hand we wondered if "Together With Music" would have mass appeal. Much to our delight most of our friends and business associates were raving about it Monday. . . .

★ ★ ★

All Hail, too, for Maurice Evans' "Alice in Wonderland." Surely Lewis Carroll would have been as delighted with the effort as were the millions of young and young-in-heart who were bewitched by it Sunday afternoon. And surely no other little girl could have looked so much like Alice as 14-year-old English actress, the charming Gillian Barber. She might have stepped from the original prints for the occasion. . . .

★ ★ ★

Lonesome George (Gobel) appeared slightly happier Saturday eve—minus his "mother." . . .

★ ★ ★

Seldom miss GE Theatre. Plays offered are solid and usually have something to say. A prime example was Ralph Bellamy and Billy Chapin's excellent work in the heart-tugging "Outpost at Home" last Sunday evening. . . .

★ ★ ★

And, in conclusion, a pat on the back for recuperating Loretta Young. Here also is a program one can count on week in and week out.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Don't try to force your views when member of your own clan early tries to block some special idea of yours. Bide time for a few hours for then you find co-worker, associate sees your point and aids you to secure it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Early a.m. frustration keeps you from doing your best at your own job. Later, you find that understanding partner gives you that backing for which you have been working. Arrive at true meeting of minds tonight, with intimate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Try to co-ordinate your aims, assets more intelligently this a.m. Then in p.m. you find that work is easily accomplished that has to do with your own job, food, household or office duties, pets or garden. Be proficient.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Confusion in various directions can early result in work poorly done. Do not permit this. Make sure you quietly do your job as is expected of you by those who have your best interests at heart.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Forget early the pleasures that attract you while completing duties of a material nature. Let others see that you understand budgets, perfection in repairs and similar efficient performance of any job to be done.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—One at home, situation involving your own household can be tense this a.m. Soothe any ruffled feelings there while doing your own work in such style that you increase your income, pay bills, collect money due you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Use special care on highway and do not antagonize usual associates, even thoughtlessly for fixed problems would result in early a.m. Later day fine for expanding, extending your interests. After getting all dolled up, seek new outlets for gain.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN WEDNESDAY . . .

Wednesday's child is one of those very charming youngsters who has it in his, or her, power to break up existing conditions which are inefficient or outmoded for a more modern and effective expression. Make sure you do let your offspring see that you have his, or her, welfare at heart since this child is so sensitive and subjective that it is always necessary to teach that impersonal viewpoints bring support and benefits from others. Fine chart for one able to take proven principles and reduce to a workable formula.

Building of Parking Bays On Waterfront To Go Ahead

Construction of view-point parking bays on Dallas Road near Linden and near Moss street intersections will proceed immediately, it was learned at City Hall today.

The new parking areas are being opposed by residents of Dallas Road in that area, but so far their petition has not been received by council.

However, informed sources at City Hall say the arguments of the petitioners have been considered by the public works committee and overruled.

Mayor Claude Harrison said this morning the project must be considered from the viewpoint of the citizens of the city as a whole and not merely the opinions of the nearby residents.

The petitioners claim the construction of the new parking areas will depreciate their properties. They fear that the waterfront area will become the scene of wild parking parties late at night.

It is understood that the works committee takes the view that the presence of the nearby homes will discourage any misuse of the area.

The two new parking bays are being built out of Capital City Grant funds, an annual $50,000 disbursement by the government, as part of a waterfront beautification program.

Multi-Purpose Auditorium for Victoria Urged

Spokane Expert Surveys City

Benjamin C. Moore, civic building consultant from Spokane, is presenting his recommendations for a Victoria auditorium to a special committee of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce tonight.

He will report on his two-day study of the city to the special auditorium committee set up by the chamber at a dinner meeting in the Strathcona Hotel at 6 p.m.

Today, in company with Arnold Webb, secretary of the civic affairs group, he explored several Victoria areas with a view to finding a possible site for a suggested 8,000-seat auditorium—5,000 seats above the floor and 3,000 on it.

"Some might think this a little large, Mr. Moore told the Times today, "but I am looking to the day when Victoria will have a population of 170,000—probably in about 10 or 15 years time."

MANY PURPOSES

He is convinced that Victoria should have a multi-purpose auditorium similar to the year-old Spokane Coliseum. It should be equipped with facilities for "anything that may come to the city."

"It must be in a central location, as close to the hotels as possible. If you have it more than a mile from the hotels you're done for."

Smaller rooms for conventions should be provided in addition to the main auditorium. He said the Spokane Coliseum had seven similar rooms capable of seating from 100 to 600 persons and divisible further by sound-proof partitions.

"You must provide for quick changes," he continued. "A modern auditorium should be properly supplied with mobile equipment. The reason so many auditoriums on the North American continent are white elephants is because of inadequate mobile equipment."

Mr. Moore admitted that it took 29 years for Spokane to be "sold" on the idea of building a civic auditorium.

OLD FOLK OPPOSED

"Our chamber of commerce was actively in favor of it from the start, but the idea was contested by many conservatively-minded groups, including the many old-age pensioners who had settled in Spokane."

Mr. Moore is definitely opposed to the idea of converting Victoria's present arena into an auditorium.

"But," he added, "the arena could be put to many uses. It would make a terrific community centre and the armed forces in particular could put on shows and dances there."

As an example of the quick-changing possibilities of the Spokane Coliseum, Mr. Moore mentioned the ice-plowing machinery that can remove ice from the floor in 50 minutes.

Other points he made were:

With adequate seating, shows can be presented at a lower price per seat bringing in larger crowds.

The day of the small theatre is just about over. If the audience is smaller than 3,000, costs are too high to attract travelling shows.

WILL ATTRACT MORE

If an auditorium is built first other convention accommodation will follow.

Mr. Moore said since the Coliseum was built Spokane had signed up four national conventions, each of them bringing between $250,000 and $300,000 into the city.

"In any city of 100,000," he said, "an auditorium operated efficiently can pay its operating expenses and interest on its bonds. It should definitely be financed by bond issue, generally against the credit of the city."

He pointed out that if an auditorium in Victoria were built near the Memorial Arena, the same plant could be used for making ice on both floors.

damage on shore. A Canadian Press roundup reports a rock and soil slide near Port Alberni barely missed a bus carrying 20 persons; 400 persons near Squamish faced the possibility of isolation; heavy mist and fog grounded TCA Island-mainland flights early Monday evening.

But driver Mike Bewza said his passenger bus was nearly caught in a slide Monday night at Angel Rock, 16 miles east of Port Alberni.

He said he heard "an awful rumble from a slide area up above" after he left the bus to clear rocks from the road. "I jumped into the bus and backed out of there," he added.

ROAD BLOCKED

The slide covered 30 feet of road with mud and rock to a depth of four feet. Workmen were clearing the road today.

At Squamish, the rain-swollen Mamquam River rose eight feet during the night, wiping out a highway bridge four miles north of the town and endangering a railway bridge nearby.

The 150-foot wooden bridge collapsed while workmen blasted log jams threatening the railway bridge. Loss of the railway span would isolate about 100 persons.

Four of the 30 families living between the bridges were evacuated after deep water swept through the streets.

Both schools in Squamish, a town of about 1,000 population 30 miles north of Vancouver, were closed when water filled the school basements. The road to Britannia Beach was cut when a bridge was washed out and the Pacific Great Eastern Railway reported a two-day delay in train movements.

HITLER

dered what could be the reason for his urgent call.

More and more, in the last few days, the Fuehrer had sought my services. I felt I was sharing his confidences more fully than ever before and that his distrust of others had grown.

But I was not prepared for the dramatic scene that followed. The years have not dimmed my memory of any detail of that meeting.

FACE WAS GRAVE

Hitler was standing by his table when I entered. His face was white; his eyes were grave and cold. He stood like a statue and after an exchange of salutes he looked straight at me. It was always so. But on this day those strange hypnotic eyes seemed to bore right into me.

"Linge," he said, "I want to release you from my service—you can break out and rejoin your family."

I, too, stood like a statue. But my mind raced at the glimpse of a chance of freedom. Then I turned my back on such thoughts.

"Mein Fuehrer," I said, "I have been with you in the great days. I will stay with you whatever the future holds."

His face remained expressionless but he half-raised his hand in a gesture.

"I did not expect it otherwise," he replied. Then in brisk, matter-of-fact tones he added, "Now I have a special order for you."

4. Better east-west relations: The west is suggesting greater facilities be given for travellers and information to cross the Iron Curtain.

Meanwhile Israel's Prime Minister Moshe Sharett and the explosive Middle East situation may remind the NATO ministers of some of the harsher realities of Soviet policy.

Sharett, who hurried to Paris to protest Communist sales of arms to Egypt and other Arab enemies of Israel, is expected to ask Dulles, Macmillan and Pinay to intercede with Molotov at Geneva on Israel's behalf.

A slight possibility is seen that the full NATO council of ministers may also be asked to consider whether the arms deal between Egypt and Red Czechoslovakia might be the forerunner of a Soviet penetration into the Middle East and encouragement of an Arab attack on Israel.

Communist-Led Unions Still Barred—TUC

A short life was predicted today for a B.C. Trades Union Congress resolution asking re-admission of communist-led unions to Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

TUC vice-president Vic Midgley said he thought the resolution, passed by a minority at September's TUC convention, would die when it comes before next year's first annual convention of the merged Trades and Labor Congress and Canadian Congress of Labor.

In an executive meeting at the week-end, TUC draughted a policy statement affirming that the B.C. congress is still bound by the TLC constitution, which prohibits membership of communist-led unions.

"The policy with regard to admittance of unions by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada has not been changed and only unions meeting the requirements of the constitution will be admitted," the statement read in part.

It also said the old and new executives of the TUC take exception to press speculation which came after the minority resolution passed in convention at Vancouver. It was then intmiated the TUC favored a "wide-open" membership policy in B.C.

PREMIER'S COMMENT

Civil Servants 'Treated Nicely'

B.C. has "a fine civil service, very efficient," and the present government has "treated them very nicely."

This was Premier Bennett's comment Monday on a request for a royal commission on inquiry into civil servant bargaining procedure, made here during the B.C. Government Employees' Association convention Friday and Saturday.

B.C.'s civil servants are in "a preferred position," the premier said.

"They (the civil servants) are the only group in this province which has the protection of an act. We have never heard them ask to have it repealed," said the premier.

Trade Licence Holders Plan To Get Vote

City voters' list is due for a boost Wednesday when about 30 trades licensees from the 700-block Fort will attend from the 700-block Fort register.

None of the 30 were previously on the list. They are registering now as part of a campaign by an unnamed election candidate to "bring out the vote."

Jack Housez, Fort Street photographer, said the merchants were contacted in a canvass he conducted after being approached by the candidate, who he would not name.

Cut in By-Law Draws Protest

By DICK FREEMAN, Times Brentwood Correspondent

BRENTWOOD—Deletion of $25,000 from a School District 63 $750,000 money by-law, an action demanded by several groups that approached the district board of trustees, was scored at a public meeting here Monday night.

The contested figure represents the cost of a new administration office and maintenance shop for the district.

Those present at the meeting, in Brentwood WI hall, included represenatives from various groups throughout the school district.

The meeting was called at the instigation of Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce, that invited George L. Chatterton, chairman of the board's building committee, to present the facts and clear up any misconceptions concerning the by-law which will be voted on Nov. 5.

A resolution calling for the reinstatement of the $15,000 office building and $10,000 maintenance shop in the by-law, which now totals $712,000, was introduced by W. F. Grafton and carried.

Passage of this by-law amount, it was shown, would add but one mill to taxes.

BOARD PRAISED

Another resolution sponsored by John B. Windsor, congratulated the board for the sensible and businesslike manner in which the by-law had been prepared.

Victor J. Wood, leading the question period, sought information as to the withdrawal of the office building from the by-law.

"The building is nothing but a rattle-trap falling apart from dry rot, leaky roof, and rotting underpinnings", he said. "Renovation would cost more than a new building which would have meant but a few more cents to the taxpayer".

Mr. Chatterton explained that the office and maintenance buildings had been eliminated from the by-law because the board "did not want to jeopardize the classrooms."

SHOP IMPORTANT

It was possible, added Mr. Chatterton, that the board might in the future have to rent offices.

He contended that the maintenance shop was more important and should be centrally located. Maintenance for 15 schools was at present carried on from a garage at Royal Oak.

Chairman R. L. Desmond emphasized the fact that the provincial government contributed 75 per cent of school costs.

Mr. Chatterton, answering a query by Mrs. Roger Ronson, thought the old Brentwood school was centrally located for office purposes, but said renovation would be a costly proposition.

J. J. Woods wanted to know why the Patricia Bay elementary school had been abandoned.

TRANSPORT COSTLY

Mr. Chatterton replied that the board did not favor spending public funds on buildings they did not own. It was not an easy decision to make, he said.

Cost of transportation also entered into the question. "Transportation is one of the biggest headaches we have to contend with," he said, adding that it would cost $12,000 annually if the present service was continued.

He figured $2,000 for transportation to Patricia Bay alone. Three classrooms of North Saanich high, he said, are right now attending Patricia Bay and involving transportation for several miles.

TAXATION DISCUSSED

The question of taxation on farm lands was raised by J. J. Woods and Willard W. Michell.

Reference was made to South Saanich Farmers' Institute going on record opposing any new money by-law for educational purposes as long as unequal imposition of taxes on farm lands exists.

Mr. Woods thought recommendations should be made to the government with a view to obtaining some alleviation of taxes on farm lands.

PARKING LOTS FOR STUDENTS NEW PROBLEM

BRENTWOOD — Chairman R. L. Desmond drew a hearty chuckle from the schools by-law audience here Monday evening when he dryly observed: "Coming events cast their shadows."

"We may soon be faced with the prospect of having to provide adequate space on school grounds for the parking of students' cars," he said.

The show will be divided into two groups, collections and crafts.

"We hope to make Chemainus a show place for hobbyists on Vancouver Island," Mr. Wilson said.

Pete Matiaco, reported to be suffering with appendicitis, was flown to Campbell River and then taken to Vancouver by boat and ambulance.

Both men were reported in good condition.

PHEASANTS 'DOOMED'

20,000 Hunters Expected In Island Woods by 1960

CHEMAINUS — Rotarians learned something about the game department's approach to hunting and fishing when biologists Don Robinson and Dave Hurd spoke to them at their last regular meeting.

Mr. Robinson predicted that by 1960 there would be more than 20,000 hunters on Vancouver Island "and many more anglers." Through research, collecting pertinent data on habitat and species, and regular check stations, biologists are making a constant effort to improve hunting conditions, he said.

Speaking on hunting prospects for the future, he said that pheasants are "just about doomed" on the Island. Blue and willow grouse go hand in hand with logging, and most of the big lumber firms were going in for patch logging.

"This won't do the grouse any good," he said.

Patch logging, on the other hand, will prove beneficial to the deer population. Main problem on Vancouver Island is one of access, he said.

The various game clubs have done a good job of public relations with the bigger companies and have gained access to many areas once closed to hunters, Mr. Robinson said. He added, though, that many of the companies concerned had found it cheaper to let hunters onto their holdings than have unchecked game destroy newly-forested areas. It cost $30 an acre to plant new seedlings, and deer had been known to destroy from 200 to 300 acres at a time, he said.

Newly-appointed fisheries biologist Dave Hurd said he was on the threshhold of his work on the Island. He caused the raising of a few eyebrows when he said fishing was "virtually an unexploited field."

He outlined a five-phase program he intended to institute that includes assessment, establishment, reclamation, development, and research.

Lake Cowichan Doctor Wins Court Appeal

NANAIMO (CP)—Appeal by a Lake Cowichan doctor of a 30-day sentence for allegedly driving while under the influence of alcohol was upheld by Judge L. A. Hanna here Monday.

Dr. A. D. Dale was sentenced July 17 by Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts, who convicted Dr. Dale on his second charge of dangerous driving.

Judge Hanna ruled that Dr. Dale's condition could have been fatigue, and not due to drinking.

Nanaimo Jaycees Act to Prevent Shacktown Growth

NANAIMO (BUP)—In an effort to stop shack towns developing on Vancouver Island, the Junior Chamber of Commerce here will appeal to Provincial Secretary Wesley D. Black.

In Victoria, clinic chairman on government affairs Lloyd Liesch said Port Alberni businessmen are gravely concerned over the problem which they said is due to lack of building areas.

Nanaimo Jaycee Frank Ney proposed that Ottawa should offer industry incentive to expand in smaller centres.

The appeal to Mr. Black was approved at a Nanaimo district meeting.

Canada 'Informed' On Royal Romance

Queen's Tour Royal Tip On Marriage?

LONDON (CP) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are going to Nigeria on a royal tour of West Africa early next year, Buckingham Palace announced tonight.

The Associated Press reported "the suddenness of the announcement raised speculation the Queen may be making arrangements to be out of the country in the event her sister, Princess Margaret, goes ahead with her marriage to Peter Townsend."

The royal couple probably will fly both ways, the announcement said.

Nigeria, which has the largest population of any of Britain's dependent territories, has never been visited by a reigning sovereign. The Prince of Wales went there in 1925.

Text of the palace announcement: "The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will visit Nigeria next year, arriving there during the last few days of January and returning towards the middle of February.

"It is the Queen's hope that it may be possible for her to visit Her Majesty's other territories in West Africa in due course."

VISITS PRINCESS

Group Capt. Peter Townsend called on Princess Margaret at Clarence House today, two hours after she returned from a state drive for the president of Portugal.

Townsend arrived at 2.30 p.m.—the earliest call the handsome air attache has made to Clarence House since his return to London from Belgium on Oct. 12. All his previous four visits were in the late afternoon or evening.

Shortly before Townsend arrived at the big, buff-colored mansion across the park from Buckingham Palace, the Queen Mother left quietly to carry out an engagement at a big dairy show.

EDEN DODGES ANSWER AS COMMONS OPENS

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden avoided a formal reply to a parliamentary question designed to smoke out the status of the rumored romance between Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

Eden briskly answered a series of questions leading right up to loaded question No. 61 put by Laborite MP Marcus Lipton. It asked if the government intended to try to repeal or amend the Royal Marriage Act of 1772.

Eden got to No. 59 and then sat down without going to No. 61.

Question time already had run past its alloted hour, so Eden was perfectly within his rights in dodging an answer to Lipton's query.

No Action By Cabinet In Sight

By VICTOR J. MACKIE

OTTAWA—The Canadian government received an "informative" communication from Britain over the weekend concerning the romance of Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend, it was learned from informed sources today.

Members of the Canadian government declined to comment. It was suggested here that the communication would not be taken up by the Canadian cabinet until there was something "positive" to discuss.

The British communication was described as of "an informative nature." However, an Associated Press report from London said the British government had informally sounded out the Commonwealth countries on their reaction to the Royal romance.

AWAIT ANNOUNCEMENT

Whether or not it was consulted the Canadian government has not expressed any opinion in reply. The position of the Canadian government presumably will be that no consideration of the matter is required until the engagement of the couple is an announced fact.

Renunciation by Princess Margaret of her right of succession to the British throne would require the assent of the Canadian parliament. Justice officials have examined the Statute of Westminster (1931) and abdication of King Edward VIII in 1936. It is concluded that parliamentary action in Canada would be required, as well as in the other Commonwealth countries.

Wallis Won't Comment

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor arrived from Europe today on the liner United States and declined comment on England's current royal romance.

SEASON'S FIRST STORM

Victoria Tug Rescues Seven

First heavy gales of winter overnight brought trouble to a tug in Island waters, and sent other craft scuttling to shelter following urgent gale warnings.

Following the storm, a circulation of cool, moist air has moved in, the weather office said. The forecast calls for heavy cloud and showers today, partial breaking through of the cloud Wednesday, with little likelihood of rain.

The small, 30-foot Vancouver tug Elizabeth A, with owner Roy Campbell aboard, was caught by suddenly rising wind and sea near the Ballenas Island group, northeast of Nanaimo in Strait of Georgia, about 6 p.m., Monday.

The tug began to ship water and was in danger of foundering. Her owner sent out a distress call on the tugboat radiotelephone, which was heard by Capt. Hec Fisher aboard Island Tug and Barge's veteran towboat Sea King I, not far from the Elizabeth A.

He reached the stricken 30-footer in slightly more than an hour, and found the owner and the six crew members bailing furiously to keep the craft afloat. Boom chains and other heavy gear had been thrown overside to lighten ship.

Sea King I got a line aboard and took Elizabeth A in tow. She was towed to Northwest Bay and anchored.

All other craft operating in Island waters were safely in snug harbors before the predicted gale-force winds struck. Heaviest winds were recorded north of the Island, in Queen Charlotte Sound, where they reached a velocity of 61 miles per hour.

The south-easterly storm brought reports to the Victoria weather office from various points of winds from 35 to 55 miles per hour.

Main force struck near the northern tip of the Island and in Strait of Georgia. Victoria's share was comparatively light, the tail-end of the storm passing over this area between 3 a.m. and dawn. Gusts to 55 miles per hour were recorded at 5.15 a.m.

HEAVY RAIN

The wind was accompanied by heavy rain. Along the Island and lower mainland coasts, two inches of rain fell in 24 hours.

The rain and wind caused

SENSATIONAL EYE-WITNESS SERIES

Hitler's Private Life

Eva Braun swallowed poison pill . . . Hitler used pistol . . . strange death scene as Soviet guns boomed in centre of Berlin.

By HEINZ LINGE, Hitler's Personal Valet
(Second Article in a 30-Part Series)

(World Copyright 1955)

BERLIN—At exactly ten minutes to four in the afternoon of April 30, 1945, a whiff of acrid smoke from a Walther pistol told me that Adolf Hitler had ended his life in a bunker 30 feet below the ruins of the Reich's Chancellery.

Throughout my long years of captivity with the Russians I have thought over and over again of that moment—Hitler's moment of despair. At the time it seemed my mind couldn't grasp the fact that the Fuehrer was dead, although I had known for five days that he had made up his mind not to try to escape from the quickly tightening Russian net around Berlin.

EXCLUSIVE to the TIMES

I had been with him in his moments of iron calm, and in moments when he was held in the grip of a secret terror, pacing up and down, up and down, forever stroking that lock of hair down over his forehead, his mouth twitching in a nervous grimace.

Now there was just that thin wisp of smoke. No noise, no crack of a pistol shot reached me from the bunker. For seconds I stood still. All was silent in the shelter. I held back, not understanding, perhaps not wanting to understand.

Then the silence was broken by the rumble of the Russian artillery. I realized there was no time to lose. I began to walk slowly to the door of Hitler's map room in the bunker . . .

Nearer to Him Than Any Other Man

Five minutes before, I had been standing at the salute, saying goodbye to the man I had served through 10 years of war and peace, nearer to him, I believe, than any other man in the world, as his valet and chief of his personal bodyguard.

At the door of the map room I paused, for I didn't relish the task ahead of me or the sight I knew would greet me. Again came the ominous rumble of the Russian bombardment and it seemed to me, so taut were my nerves, that already the guns sounded nearer.

I knew what had to be done. I had the Fuehrer's orders, and in death, as in life, they had to be carried out. He trusted me. And there in Berlin time was running out for all of us.

So I nerved myself to walk quietly into the room. There, almost upright in a sitting position on a couch, was the body of Adolf Hitler.

A small hole the size of a German silver mark showed on his right temple and a trickle of blood ran slowly down over his cheek. He was wearing a uniform which I had carefully laid out for him a few hours earlier. It was scarcely crumpled.

Death Must Have Come Instantly

One pistol, a 7.65 Walther, lay on the floor where it had dropped from his right hand. A yard or so away lay another gun of 6.35 caliber. The Fuehrer had not meant to make any mistake. Death must have come in an instant.

The body of Eva Braun—the only woman who counted in Hitler's life during the years I knew him—was sitting by his side. I believe she had died a few minutes before the Fuehrer. It was Hitler's wish that she should be with him in death as she had been for so many years in life — for the last 30 hours as his wife instead of as his mistress.

No mark showed on Eva Braun's face; it was as though she had fallen asleep. She had swallowed a capsule of poison, one of a dozen Hitler had gotten for just such a circumstance as this from an army doctor. They were for the women attached to his staff and for the wife of Dr. Goebbels; but above all for Eva.

Earlier that day my master had his favorite Alsatian dog destroyed. Its name was Blondi and Professor Haase, Hitler's former surgeon, had come around to the bunker to end its life with poison. Two other dogs belonging to the household had been shot. Hitler had been very fond of dogs.

It had been five days earlier, on the afternoon of April 25, that I had received a message from Krueger, an under-valet. "Linge," he told me urgently on the telephone, "the Fuehrer wants to see you. At once."

I hurried to the same map room in which Hitler had chosen to die. It was his headquarters, chart room, communications room—the focal point of the disintegrating government.

He had used the room almost all the time since the Russians had menaced Berlin. Small and simply furnished, it was in the greatest contrast to the vast chambers of the now-shattered Chancellery. A door on one side led to the Fuehrer's bedroom; a door on the other side opened into Eva Braun's room.

My own quarters opened off apartments occupied by the Goebbels family. As I walked quickly to Hitler's room, I won-

'Slum Empire' Trial Takes Unusual Turn

TORONTO (CP).—In an unusual legal step today, crown officials attempted to ensure that none of the 20 crown witnesses to be called against the alleged operators of a slum empire in downtown Toronto changes his evidence when the case goes to trial.

A special closed court was held at the city hall. All witnesses were required to give their testimony under oath. Any major change from what they said today before justice of the peace Crawford W. Guest could lead to prosecution for perjury, police said.

Six of the 20 were arrested Monday in a sweep by morality officers. They were booked as material witnesses without bail. Bail also was refused to brothers Charles and William Ingwer, Steve Feron and Linus Coghlan, all charged with keeping common bawdy houses.

POSSIBLE 92 CHARGES

A possible 92 charges may be laid, but crown officials said much depends on evidence put on the record today.

Authorities said "a very infrequently used" section of the Criminal Code was the basis for hearing today's evidence.

The slum empire allegedly is owned by Johanna Nemeth, of Panama and New York.

Described by police as "just a front", Johanna Nemeth may not figure largely in the current crackdown. No warrant has been issued for her although police said they would welcome a chance to question her.

NATO Chiefs Back Big 3 Proposals

PARIS (AP)—Foreign ministers of the Atlantic alliance today gave their general agreement to the Western Big Three's proposals for easing world tensions.

The ministers from other member countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization heard a lengthy statement from U.S. State Secretary Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Pinay explaining the joint memorandum which the West will present to the Soviet Union Thursday in Geneva.

At the end of a three-hour session, a NATO official said "there was general agreement on the basic proposals."

Dulls spoke on the key section of the memorandum covering Western proposals for Germany's reunification and a general European security pact.

Macmillian spoke on disarmament proposals and pointed out that this problem is being handled by a UN subcommittee. He said the task at Geneva would be more to improve the atmosphere to help the actual work in the UN body.

Pinay presented the Big Three's views on improvement of East-West relations, mentioning trade, tourism and information.

REAFFIRMS POSITION

The new Greek foreign minister, Spyros Theotokis, made a statement on behalf of his government saying it wished to reaffirm its attachment to the Atlantic alliance. This was the only reference in the session to the recent Greek-Turkish tension which at one point had caused Athens to withdraw a Greek contingent from a scheduled NATO military manoeuvre.

Officials said that the current situation in the Middle East, particularly the threat of conflict between Israel and the Arab states in the wake of Czechoslovakian sales of arms to Egypt, has not yet been discussed.

Dulles, Macmillan and Pinay reached "complete agreement" Monday night on the memorandum with which they will confront Molotov at the meeting opening Thursday in Geneva. This was their joint position on the items listed for discussion:

1. German reunification: Real security in Europe is impossible unless the German people are permitted to come together under a single government, of their own choice, which can negotiate and sign a peace treaty for all Germany. Hence, Germany must be reunited by free elections throughout the divided country.

2. European security: To reassure the Kremlin against another aggression, the West is proposing a 14-power mutual defence pact joining the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg from NATO with the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. The West is willing to tie German unification and a European security pact together so both are achieved in parallel stages.

3. Disarmament: The west is

Labor MP Names 'Tip-Off Man' In British Diplomat-Spy Case

LONDON (AP) — A Labor member of Parliament today accused a former member of the British embassy staff in Washington of tipping off spies Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean that they were under investigation.

Lt.-Col. Marcus Lipton named Harold Philby, former first secretary of the embassy in Washington, as being the "third man" in the case.

Burgess and MacLean, high ranking British foreign office officials, disappeared in May, 1951, and now are presumed behind the Iron Curtain

Shortly after Parliament reconvened today from its two-month summer recess, Lipton tangled with Prime Minister Eden on the Red spy case.

Eden rejected a demand by the Laborite for the appointment of a special parliamentary committee to investigate the case. The prime minister added:

"The government themselves take the view that it is desirable to have a debate on this subject, in which I personally as prime minister shall be glad to take part."

The foreign office said Philby joined the service as a temporary officer with the acting rank of first secretary on Sept. 7, 1946. He resigned Sept. 18, 1951. His last post was in Washington and he served in Ankara.

Foreign office records do not show whether he held any other government appointment after his resignation from the foreign service. During the Second World War he was correspondent for the Times of London.

Philby is believed living just outside London. He could not be reached immediately for comment.

Auditorium Suggested for Victoria

This is fundamentally the type of civic auditorium recommended for Victoria by Benjamin C. Moore, visiting consultant from Spokane. Picture shows interior of the year-old Spokane Coliseum with 5,000 permanent seats around the sides and 3,000 portable padded seats, built in units of four, running down the centre. Smaller rooms for conventions are built under the permanent seats and equipment has been installed for year-round functions, including hockey, skating, opera, plays, symphony concerts, teen-age dance nights and religious, political and civic meetings. SENSATIONAL SERIES

Hitler's Private Life

Eva Braun swallowed pill, Hitler used pistol, in strange death scene as Soviet guns boomed in Berlin.

By HEINZ LINGE, Hitler's Personal Valet
(Second Article in a 30-Part Series)

(World Copyright 1955)

BERLIN—At exactly ten minutes to four in the afternoon of April 30, 1945, a whiff of acrid smoke from a Walther pistol told me that Adolf Hitler had ended his life in a bunker 30 feet below the ruins of the Reich's Chancellery.

Throughout my long years of captivity with the Russians I have thought over and over again of that moment—Hitler's moment of despair. At the time it seemed my mind couldn't grasp the fact that the Fuehrer was dead, although I had known for five days that he had made up his mind not to try to escape from the quickly tightening Russian net around Berlin.

EXCLUSIVE to the TIMES

I had been with him in his moments of iron calm, and in moments when he was held in the grip of a secret terror, pacing up and down, up and down, forever stroking that lock of hair down over his forehead, his mouth twitching in a nervous grimace.

Now there was just that thin wisp of smoke. No noise, no crack of a pistol shot reached me from the bunker. For seconds I stood still. All was silent in the shelter. I held back, not understanding, perhaps not wanting to understand.

Then the silence was broken by the rumble of the Russian artillery. I realized there was no time to lose. I began to walk slowly to the door of Hitler's map room in the bunker . . .

Nearer to Him Than Any Other Man

Five minutes before, I had been standing at the salute, saying goodbye to the man I had served through 10 years of war and peace, nearer to him, I believe, than any other man in the world, as his valet and chief of his personal bodyguard.

At the door of the map room I paused, for I didn't relish the task ahead of me or the sight I knew would greet me. Again came the ominous rumble of the Russian bombardment and it seemed to me, so taut were my nerves, that already the guns sounded nearer.

I knew what had to be done. I had the Fuehrer's orders, and in death, as in life, they had to be carried out. He trusted me. And there in Berlin time was running out for all of us.

So I nerved myself to walk quietly into the room. There, almost upright in a sitting position on a couch, was the body of Adolf Hitler.

A small hole the size of a German silver mark showed on his right temple and a trickle of blood ran slowly down over his cheek. He was wearing a uniform which I had carefully laid out for him a few hours earlier. It was scarcely crumpled.

Red Quits Rocks

Officials of the Victoria Shamrocks today made the surprise announcement that Red McMillan has resigned as team coach, following the team's recent Mann Cup Canadian lacrosse championship victory. McMillan said "The decision was entirely mine. When we won the Mann Cup this year, I achieved what I had set out to do as coach. I can go no further as coach and now I will be able to spend more time with my family."

Why is it they like t' hold conventions in buildin's with an unconventional roof?

Widespread Damage By Rock, Mud Slides

By The Canadian Press

Hundreds of passengers on three railway lines were stranded today as heavy rains caused mud and rock slides and washouts throughout western British Columbia.

A Canadian Pacific Railway train with 30 passengers aboard was stranded high up in the Coquihalla Pass between Hope and Brody on the Kettle Valley line.

In the Fraser Canyon, three Canadian National Railways continental passenger trains were halted east of Boston Bar by a series of four rock and mud slides.

And on the Pacific Great Eastern line, washouts occurred between Lillooet and Alta Lake, halting service between Squamish and Lillooet.

The CPR train, the No. 67 Kootenay Express from Medicine Hat, Alta., was stranded at the line point of Jessica, about 110 miles east of Vancouver.

PLENTY OF FOOD

A CPR spokesman in Vancouver said there was plenty of food aboard the train and telegraph communication was being maintained. He said it was not immediately known when work crews from Penticton, B.C., would have the line cleared.

The spokesman said sketchy reports placed the rock slide between Jessica and Lear.

The largest washout occurred at Mile 10 in the Kettle Valley line's Coquihalla subdivision. The washout was believed to have caused the east end of a bridge near Brody to drop six feet.

Other washouts occurred between Juliet and Cokuihalla and at Mile 22 and Mile 53, near Othello. The level of the rain-swollen Coquihalla River was reported at noon to be six inches under the Othello bridge.

The train was due in Vancouver at 9.20 a.m. today.

The CPR spokesman said other Kettle Valley trains will be re-routed to the main line through Spences Bridge and Merritt.

Meanwhile, widespread damage was caused along the B.C. coast by rain and wind during the last day and a half.

VICTORIA TUG SAVES SEVEN IN BIG GALE

Season's First Storm Severe

First heavy gales of winter overnight brought trouble to a tug in Island waters, and sent other craft scuttling to shelter following urgent gale warnings.

Following the storm, a circulation of cool, moist air has moved in, the weather office said. The forecast calls for heavy cloud and showers today, partial breaking through of the cloud Wednesday, with little likelihood of rain.

The small, 30-foot Vancouver tug Elizabeth A, with owner Roy Campbell aboard, was caught by suddenly rising wind and sea near the Ballenas Island group, northeast of Nanaimo in Strait of Georgia, about 6 p.m., Monday.

The tug began to ship water and was in danger of foundering. Her owner sent out a distress call on the tugboat radiotelephone, which was heard by Capt. Hec Fisher aboard Island Tug and Barge's veteran towboat Sea King I, not far from the Elizabeth A.

GEAR JETTISONED

He reached the stricken 30-footer in slightly more than an hour, and found the owner and the six crew members bailing furiously to keep the craft afloat. Boom chains and other heavy gear had been thrown overside to lighten ship.

Sea King I got a line aboard and took Elizabeth A in tow. She was towed to Northwest Bay and anchored.

All other craft operating in Island waters were safely in snug harbors before the predicted gale-force winds struck. Heaviest winds were recorded north of the Island, in Queen Charlotte Sound, where they reached a velocity of 61 miles per hour.

The south-easterly storm brought reports to the Victoria weather office from various points of winds from 35 to 55 miles per hour.

Main force struck near the northern tip of the Island and in Strait of Georgia. Victoria's share was comparatively light, the tail-end of the storm passing over this area between 3 a.m. and dawn. Gusts to 55 miles per hour were recorded at 5.15 a.m.

Queen's Tour Taken as Tip On Marriage

LONDON (CP) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are going to Nigeria on a royal tour of West Africa early next year, Buckingham Palace announced tonight.

The Associated Press reported "the suddenness of the announcement raised speculation the Queen may be making arrangements to be out of the country in the event her sister, Princess Margaret, goes ahead with her marriage to Peter Townsend."

Labor MP Names 'Tip-Off Man' In British Diplomat-Spy Case

LONDON (AP) — A Labor member of Parliament today accused a former member of the British embassy staff in Washington of tipping off spies Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean that they were under investigation.

Lt.-Col. Marcus Lipton named Harold Philby, former first secretary of the embassy in Washington, as being the "third man" in the case.

Burgess and MacLean, high ranking British foreign office officials, disappeared in May, 1951, and now are presumed behind the Iron Curtain.

Shortly after Parliament reconvened today from its two-month summer recess, Lipton tangled with Prime Minister Eden on the Red spy case.

Eden rejected a demand by the Laborite for the appointment of a special parliamentary committee to investigate the case. The prime minister added:

"The government themselves take the view that it is desirable to have a debate on this subject, in which I personally as prime minister shall be glad to take part."

The foreign office said Philby joined the service as a temporary officer with the acting rank of first secretary on Sept. 7, 1946. He resigned Sept. 18, 1951. His last post was in Washington and he served in Ankara.

Foreign office records do not show whether he held any other government appointment after his resignation from the foreign service. During the Second World War he was correspondent for the Times of London.

Philby is believed living just outside London. He could not be reached immediately for comment.
